China Precipitates Crisis By Stern Move

FORCE TO BE USED UNLESS BRIGANDS ACCEPT PROPOSAL

Terms Based on Incorporation of Bandit Units in Army, But Refusing Government Right.

BELIEVE BANDITS MERELY BLUFFING

Decision Arouses Diplomatic Corps to Prompt Action — Deliberations Veiled With Secrecy.

BY RAY G. MARSHALL.
Pekin, May 23.—While the American colony here was rejoicing over news of the safety of prisoners of the Shantung bandits, the Chinese government precipitated a new crisis Wednesday by deciding forcibly to release the captives unless its terms are accepted.

The terms offered are based on "the incorporation of the bandit units in the national army with a guarantee of immunity, but a refusal to permit the outlaws to govern any portion of Shantung."

The government's action comes from the belief that the bandit group is bluffing in order to force foreign intervention. Many here, however, fear that should the Chinese army attack the practically impregnable mountain stronghold of the bandits, the latter would be driven to desperation, might slaughter their prisoners and die fighting.

Arouses Diplomats.

The decision has aroused the diplomatic corps and foreign ministers immediately began sessions with their respective military heads. Minister Schurman, American representative at Peking, and General O'Connor, commanding American troops stationed at Tientsin, held a lengthy conference.

Deliberations were veiled in utmost secrecy and no decisions were announced, although it is believed that diplomats may withdraw from their original position of prohibiting the use of force, but will hold China strictly accountable for any casualties befalling foreigners.

Legations are suspicious of the government's desire to use force, and doubt China's ability to command any effective military units in a campaign against the bandits.

Reports from Lincheng declare that troops have withdrawn five miles from the mountain peak stronghold. This news has puzzled legations here, as all negotiating parties have left the rebel area, and it was believed that negotiations had been abandoned.

Sanitary Conditions.

Foreign consuls who have gone to Shantung to watch the interests of their imprisoned nationals are receiving letters from captives stating that food supplies are still arriving but that sanitary conditions are appalling. Major Robert A. Allen, imprisoned American army officer, has written: "Unless the troops are withdrawn the bandits will remove us from the mountain top. It is impossible to protect the health of foreigners who are mixed with a hundred Chinese captives, several of whom are entirely unaccustomed to cleanliness. The Chinese here are mostly ignorant of sanitation."

GRADUATING CLASS OF CITY SCHOOLS TO BREAK RECORD

Indications Before Final Exams Are That 754 Will Win Diplomas at 1923 Commencement.

TO FILM HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS AT CAPITOL

Sutton to Present Graduates as Citizens to Mayor Sims and He to Governor Hardwick.

All previous records in graduating classes from Atlanta high schools are certain to be broken this year when approximately 754 boys and girls will be presented with the coveted sheepskins, it was announced Wednesday by Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, in checking over lists from high schools of the city.

Names of boys and girls who are to complete their preparatory studies this year will not be released for publication until final examinations are completed the latter part of the month and the first week in June, Mr. Sutton stated. This rule was adopted last year when considerable confusion resulted from published lists of graduates before final "exams," as a number of students failed on the final tests.

Make Movies Today.

Motion pictures of all prospective graduates will be filmed on the state capitol grounds at 10 o'clock this morning by the visual education department of the local school system.

While the seniors are grouped in squads according to their schools, the films will be made to reveal "close-ups" of all 754 of the students.

Superintendent Sutton will then present the graduating classes to Mayor Walter A. Sims as citizens of Atlanta. The mayor, after receiving them in behalf of the city, will in a brief address present them to Governor Thomas W. Hardwick, as citizens of the great commonwealth of Georgia.

It has been arranged to have the presidents of all colleges in and around Atlanta present at the exercises. Students who are planning to enter the various colleges will be grouped together and introduced to the heads of the colleges in which they will enroll next term.

ABOUT-FACE POLICY AVOIDED IN CHANGE OF BRITISH LEADERS

Increase in Energy Only Material Difference Between Bonar Law and New Premier.

BRITAIN RESIGNED TO MORAL STRAIN

Present Attitude of Nation Is Tolerance and Consideration Toward Rest of World.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

London, May 23.—Rarely has there been a change in premiers in Great Britain that has implied so little in the nature of any about-face in policy as does the present shift. There will, however, be an increase in energy in the carrying out of policy that will be measured by the difference between the sick man Bonar Law was and the vigorous man Stanley Baldwin is.

Bonar Law's policy was patient waiting. Mr. Baldwin's will be patient and courteous, but with the definite ends kept always in view. As to France and the Ruhr, the new ministry will go on having no confidence in the ultimate success of France's plan than Bonar Law had when he stepped aside to let France go it alone. At the same time they give their blessing to France and will do nothing to embarrass her until her plan comes to one end or another.

Looking to Reparations.

Industrially and politically, Britain has settled down to endure a long period of hard times and moral strain until the reparation question is settled and world trade, which is the thing Britain depends on, becomes normal.

As between Stanley Baldwin and Marquis Curzon, the chief thing that held the former back from being the instant and obvious choice for the premiership has been lack of self-seeking on his part. Marquis Curzon himself—has been of a more pushing type. Baldwin has been utterly willing, if it was desired to let his great adaptability to situations be subordinate to Marquis Curzon's greater length of political life, and therefore greater claim on party reward.

Mr. Baldwin is an odd figure in the very odd public life of present-day Britain. A cousin of Rudyard Kipling, the poet, and nephew of Burns-Jones, the richly imaginative artist, Mr. Baldwin himself inherited an iron manufacturing and engineering business, and does so well with it that he accumulated a fortune and entered politics at the age of 42.

The qualities that brought him forward politically have been those that made him successful in business—practical common-sense, a friendly give-and-take in his relations with men, and very great unselfishness in his relations with his country.

Commoner Acceptable.

As between a commoner and a peer, all recent discussions have emphasized

With "Not a Thing But Time and Goats," WORLD'S YOUNGEST "GOATHERDESS" WILL ASSIST HER DAD WITH FLOCK Atlantan Plans New Kind of Dairy Here

A section of J. F. Hazelton's herd of 370 goats in their pen at the Union stockyards and Charlotte Hazelton, 5, the world's youngest "goatherdess," with her favorite goat dog, "Spot," a full-grown animal bred by Mr. Hazelton from a Pomeranian and Chihuahuan for the express purpose of handling his goats. "Spot" weighs five pounds and can handle ten thousand times his weight in goats, scurrying like a streak of scared lightning among their hoofs and biting them into orderly submissiveness.

J. F. Hazelton Brings Family Back From Arizona With Lot of Health and Goats.

BY STEWART F. GELDERS.

"I've got nothing but time and goats," was J. F. Hazelton's succinct review of his troubles when he introduced himself at the offices of The Constitution Wednesday afternoon.

"But I've got plenty of goats," he added.

Out at the Union stockyards he has 370 of them, 300 "manny goats," 40 "billy goats" and 30 of the friskiest kids in captivity.

They are confined in two big pens in one of the stockyards and they look hungrily beyond expanses of brick walls and long lines of white-washed fences, looking for the vast open spaces in which they were born and reared, the plains and mountains of Arizona.

Dairy Goat Farm.

A few miles north of Atlanta is 100 acres of open range land, all signed up to become a dairy goat farm. There the kids can skip and gambol through the long grass and the munny goats can munch the greenery and turn it into rich milk for invalids and babies through all Atlanta.

They can't be released from their prisons, however, until freight charges are paid. It costs a lot to bring 370 goats, three car loads, from Arizona to Georgia.

Therefore, Mr. Hazelton's succinct statement of his affairs: "I've got nothing but time and goats."

Nature Answers Summer's Call; Today To Be Hot

Wild Things of Forest and Garden Alive to Shifting Season.

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

The year goes from dogwood to roses—spring to summer.

There is a stir in the thicket and a bold call can be heard in the forest. Dancing into the luminous depths of the azure sky are the million creatures of the sun. From calyx to calyx fly the gatherers of honey, never weary, never for a moment forgetting the imperative demands of the hive; to bring in the melliferous sap and to assure a plentiful supply of food for the coming generation.

In the underbrush one may hear the chorus of singing insects and screeching winged creatures. As they lift their transparent wings they cry out with the joy of living. The total sum of their lives is contained within the space of a few days. Next summer the same song will be heard but the melodies will be given by the descendants of this year's troubadours.

From the hour when the sun tinges the horizon with purple until the sun sets in a brilliant glow in the west, there is no intermission in the concert. There are monotonous screeches and shrill penetrating sounds and lively oft-repeated little ditties. Right next to the singers a life and death

GIANT EXPLOSION IN BIRMINGHAM ROCKS ENTIRE CITY

Fire At Plant of Wofford Oil Company Spreading To Adjoining Tanks

Birmingham, Ala., May 24.—Fire broke out at the plant of the Wofford Oil company here at 2 o'clock this morning following an explosion in one of the gasoline tanks. The explosion rocked the city and thousands of people immediately began to assemble.

It was feared that the fire would spread to adjoining tanks, where a number of gasoline tanks are nearby. At 2:45 o'clock the fire was still raging.

At 3 o'clock it was not believed there was any loss of life. It was learned that the fire was discovered by E. C. Battle, night watchman. Mr. Battle reported that he had just completed his rounds at 2 o'clock and was sitting at his desk when the plant was shaken by an explosion. Almost immediately the tank was in flames.

Eight railway tankers were reported nearby and firemen were apprehensive of this property's safety.

The plant is located in East Birmingham, a short distance from Norwood, a fashionable residential section of the city.

Within a block of the Woco plant are Joubert Mill Machine and Foundry company, Southern Cotton Gin Machinery company and the Birmingham Tile Works, all large and prosperous manufacturing plants, and numerous other smaller concerns.

An orphan's home owned by the W. C. T. U. is only a short distance from the plant. Several negro houses are within one block, and the fashionable homes of Norwood begin about five blocks away.

Wave of Discontent Melting Away in Agricultural States—Hazy Idea of Benefits.

SURVEY REVEALS PULSE OF NATION.

New York, May 23.—A fairly accurate, comprehensive and interpretative study of economic and political conditions existing throughout the country in April and May revealed, few important momentary troubles but many imaginary or potential ones, mainly of a political character.

The survey of the country extended from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, into the northwest and the south. Articles printed in The Constitution from time to time have reflected the opinions of the man in the street and the man on the farm on passing events, both foreign and domestic, more particularly the latter.

These opinions were obtained at first hand in order to disclose to the reading public the state of mind of American citizens in every part of the country regarding matters which to widely distributed units seemed most important.

BY LOUIS SEIBOLD. (Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

New York, May 23.—The improvement in business conditions throughout the United States has been steady and uniform since the first of the year. Almost every line of productive and manufacturing has shared in the wave of prosperity in varying degree. In some sections of the country complete optimism prevails as to the future; in others skepticism has dictated a policy of conservatism as to future undertakings. Some business groups are convinced that the improvement in business conditions will continue for an indefinite period; others that the mounting costs of production, shortage of labor and taxes are steadily making for inflation, and precipitating the turning point in prevailing abnormal labor costs and cost of raw materials.

FINANCIER READY TO SUPPORT PLAN OF REHABILITATION

Banking House to Organize Syndicate to Underwrite $25,000,000 of $130,000,000 Loan.

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS TO BE COMPLETED

Awaiting Advices From Europe That Details for Balance of Loan Have Been Agreed Upon.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

New York, May 23.—J. P. Morgan today announced he had advised the loan commission of Austria that his banking house was prepared to organize a syndicate to underwrite $25,000,000 of the $130,000,000 Austrian reconstruction loan.

Mr. Morgan said, in a prepared statement, that he informed the Austrian commission his firm was ready to act when the time was ripe for making the issue to be divided among the lending countries of the world.

Mr. Morgan declared his firm stood ready to undertake the work because it believed the bonds to be well secured and because it marked a step toward improving business conditions of the world.

"It is the first step," the statement said, "toward the rehabilitation of central Europe taken by all the nations working together, and we believe that the American nation should take its part when such a concerted effort is being made to better general business conditions in the world."

Reasons For Action.

"We have been asked by Dr. Zimmermann of Holland, the commissioner general of Austria, and by the loan commission of Austria, if we would be prepared to undertake the placing of $25,000,000 of bonds of the Austrian government in this country. After careful investigation of the present condition of Austria, particularly the great improvement made during the past five months, and after consultation with leading bankers in the large centers of the United States, we have advised the loan commission that when their plan for selling this issue of bonds in the various markets of the group is ready we would undertake to organize a syndicate to underwrite $25,000,000 of the total issue of $130,000,000, which is to be divided up among the possible leading countries.

"There for the moment the matter rests, and we are awaiting advices from Europe that final arrangements are completed with the bankers of England, France, Holland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Switzerland, Spain, different countries will be completed Belgium, Italy and Czechoslovakia. It is expected that the details in these in time for simultaneous issue in all of them about the first week in June, and in that issue we are ready to take the part indicated above."

Why the Weather?

DR. CHARLES F. BROOKS,
Secretary American Meteorological Society, says:

Mares' Tails Are Cirrus Clouds

An intimate acquaintance with the cirrus clouds, and their close relatives, the cirro-stratus and cirro-cumulus, is most useful in recognizing approaching stormy weather. Even in the hottest weather they consist of ice-needles, for they are usually from three to six miles above the earth, where the temperature ranges from 15 to 100 degrees below freezing.

Usually they appear as the advance guard of a storm, which their great speed causes them to outstrip, though they had their origin in the same place and at the same time as the rest of the storm mass. The true cirrus is first to arrive. The name is most appropriate; translated it is "a curl," "a ringlet." Its "Mares' tails" are like long wisps of hair, its "feather clouds" are great curling plumes.

As the storm gets nearer, the cirro-stratus clouds appear, a thicker layer like an unbroken white veil, of uneven and often fibrous texture. Their tops are of about the same altitude as the cirrus, but their snowy trails have fallen lower. Cirro-cumulus may accompany them as thin whitish flecks from which the cirrus snow trails fall. In the most familiar form it is the "curled sky." More picturesque still is the mackerel sky where the clouds are arranged in groups and lines very like the pattern of the fish's back.

MANY DELIGHTS FOR CONSTITUTION CONTEST WINNERS

Young 'Mayor' of Atlantic City

Out at the Home for the Friendless—unaware of the high honor soon to be conferred upon him and probably playing at this moment in kiddie overalls—is the future mayor of the Atlantic City, N. J.

This statement is made with positive assurance—assurance based upon a letter from Dr. W. J. Carrington, prominent Kiwanian of Atlantic City, who Wednesday informed The Constitution that the little fellow chosen in The Constitution's contest for the splendid vacation trip being offered a local teacher and a child from the home, will be declared mayor of the world's greatest pleasure resort.

Dr. Carrington also detailed other delightful plans for the boy and a teacher who are so lucky as to be chosen winners of The Constitution contest for the trip offered the two by the Atlantic City Kiwanis club, which is receiving cooperation of the Atlanta Kiwanis club and Superintendent of Schools Willis A. Sutton.

BALL INVESTIGATING REAL ESTATE GRAFT

Alleged Action of Realtors in Washington Is Termed
"Usury Within the Law."

LY A. D. FAIRBANKS.
Washington, D. C., May 23.—(Special.)—Senator Ball, chairman of the committee on District of Columbia affairs, has been asked by several residents of the district to investigate an entirely new special of petty graft. It appears that certain real estate men have decided that persons who are paying for their homes on the installment plan must meet their obligations on the exact day they are due or pay a penalty of $1.50.

ed for notaries' fees and other imposts. There is no law to prevent a real estate man from fleecing the hard-pressed purchaser of homes in the way threatened, but whether there is any code of ethics that would approve the scheme, Senator Ball says he seriously doubts.

Unable to Be Exact.
Many scores of perfectly honest citizens are unable to meet their payments on the exact day they are due. In many cases the installment is payable between two pay days and it happens that citizens who have not established a credit at the bank are compelled to wait a week or perhaps ten days. This entails no hardship on the holder of the note, but a few days of grace often is an absolute necessity with men and women who are struggling to acquire a home.

Now certain types of real estate men are determined that this grace shall not longer be extended, but if it is, the victim must pay $1.50 for the privilege. So that a man or woman paying an installment of fifty dollars a month is required to pay a sum for the privilege of a few days of extension that Shylock would be ashamed of.

Hall Scores Plan.
"I am astounded that any real estate man of any standing would even think of such a scheme, much less put it into execution and I do not believe that any self-respecting bank would lend itself to so unusual a plan," said Senator Ball. "Certainly if these monthly notes are permitted to go to protest, persons who are trying to acquire homes will be greatly discouraged."

"Hundreds of underpaid government clerks and others are honestly trying to meet their payments on homes. They should be given every chance to make good. The landlords have made it necessary for families to acquire homes of their own. They have done everything in the world to discourage the renting of houses, but have built for selling purposes only. Now it appears some of them want to devise a novel means of oppressing those whom their policy has compelled to purchase their residences."

Letter Warns Clients.
Whether the plan to allow installment notes to go to protest if they are not promptly paid is endorsed by the real estate men generally, is not known. But a prominent firm the other day sent a letter to all its clients warning them that if the installments were not paid immediately they were due, $1.50 would be added as a penalty.

Senator Ball said nothing could be done until congress convenes, but if the threat of the realtors is put into execution, appropriate legislation will be submitted early in the session.

"I don't know how a situation of this kind can be met," said Senator Ball, "but it is unthinkable that a coterie of real estate men would or could do what has been threatened and get away with it."

Senators Harris and George, of Georgia, will be invited by Senator Ball to submit their views on the subject and it is likely if the threat is executed that President Harding will be appealed to by heads of the various citizens associations in the district.

As every purchaser of a home has paid in advance a considerable portion of the price, the seller takes absolute no chance when a struggling buyer is a few days behind on a monthly installment. This matter will be submitted to the board of directors of the board of trade with a view to determining just how much support there is among the business men of Washington.

PROMINENT COBB PLANTER SUICIDES

Ill Health Is Blamed for Act by Calvin Jasper
Bullard Near Marietta, Georgia.

Marietta, Ga., May 23.—(Special.)—Calvin Jasper Bullard, 70, one of the most prominent planters of Cobb county, ended his own life by hanging, in an outbuilding at his home on the Dallas road, about five miles from here, at noon today. A coroner's jury, empaneled shortly after the finding of the body, returned a verdict of suicide.

Mr. Bullard had been at home with his wife all morning. About 11:15 he told her he was going to his watermelon patch to learn the progress of the crop. He did not return at noon for dinner, as was his usual custom, and at 12:30 a search was started. When it was learned that he was not at the watermelon patch, the outbuilding around his home was searched, first the barn and then the blacksmith shop. His body was found at the latter place by Mrs. Bullard. He had tied one end of a rope to a rafter and the other around his neck, and apparently had jumped off a work bench. He had been dead about one hour.

Members of his family attribute his suicide to ill health. He was born in Cobb county, and had lived here all of his life.

Besides his wife, Mr. Bullard is survived by eight sons, Tom and Roy Bullard, of New York City; Estner Bullard, of Tampa, Fla.; Herbert, Clifton, Cecil, Edward E. and Harold Bullard, of Marietta, and daughters, Mrs. J. R. Knight and Mrs. Clyde Allendale, of Marietta.

Funeral services will await the arrival of the sons from New York City and Tampa, Fla.

Congress Urged To Widen Scope Of Trade Board

Edgar Watkins Declares Trade Commission Is Destructive Force.

Constitution Bureau,
Raichig Hotel.
Washington, May 23.—Declaring that the federal trade commission is now a destructive force, Edgar Watkins, of Atlanta, urged that congress should make the regulating body a constructive force, in an address Wednesday before the convention of the Wholesale Grocers' association, of which he is general counsel.

"The commission should be directed to alter its present methods of dealing with alleged unfair practices," Attorney Watkins said.

It should follow the procedure used by the interstate commerce commission, he declared, by starting a general investigation of practices believed unfair, instead of citing individual firms or companies. This method, Watkins said, would prevent injustice to business men who are now often injured by the publicity accompanying the citations of the commission.

Attorney Watkins also suggested that congress empower the commission to draw up a code of "business ethics," which should be followed by all forms of business.

After asserting that the federal trade commission, under the present law, is "always an adversary to business," Attorney Watkins explained that he did not want to appear as criticizing the commission.

Recognize Sincerity.
"We recognize the sincerity and good faith of the gentlemen of that commission," he said. "The organization of the commission is fundamentally wrong. As the law has been construed, and probably as it was intended to mean by the congress, the commission has no functions other than negative ones."

"It can prohibit but it cannot advise. It can order business to stop, but cannot aid business to go ahead. The commission is both prosecutor and judge. After an ex parte investigation it may decide that there is something wrong and a complaint is filed, of the validity of which the law is the judge. Having prejudged the situation, the burden of proof is on the respondent to charge the judgment of the commission."

"Given an appropriate method of aiding business I have no doubt that the federal trade commission would be a valuable adjunct to business. Congress has shown a disinclination to give the commission power to make declaratory judgments, but perhaps there would be no objection to do general investigations and general findings by that commission.

Offers Two Amendments.
In suggesting changes to the federal trade commission act, Attorney Watkins proposed the following:

1. An amendment authorizing trade associations to announce, publish and adhere to a code of business ethics.
2. An amendment authorizing the federal trade commission on its own motion to institute investigations as to the fairness of particular trade practices and ethical codes, and providing that no complaints be filed against individuals for any practice not definitely and clearly prohibited, unless and until such practice is in a general investigation found to be unfair.

"These amendments will enable the commission to put itself in association with business and to aid business rather than as now, where it is always an adversary to business," he said.

Attorney Watkins dealt with many questions of interest to wholesale grocers throughout the country. He discussed functions of trade associations, acts to regulate commerce and amendments that should be made to those acts, and the anti-trust laws. He also reviewed the various legal developments during the past year which affected the grocery industry.

Suggests Forming Of Democratic Clubs by Women

Rome, Ga., May 23.—(Special.)—Women voters will be organized into "1924 democratic national victory clubs" of their own, framed along the same general lines of those now being formed by men, if a suggestion being forwarded to Cordell Hull tonight by Lee J. Langley, president of the local club, is carried out.

Further, Mr. Langley has set on foot a movement to combine into one general state federation all of the local clubs of the state, to have headquarters in Atlanta.

Through such a state organization, Mr. Langley points out, democratic leaders in the state can keep in touch with what is being done in all sections of the state, and in case some section fails to come through with its quota for the national fund, workers can be sent from the central body to assist in the work in that particular section.

Atlanta District Wins Telephone First Aid Meet

3,000 Employees Cheer Favorite Teams Competing at City Auditorium.

About 3,000 spectators watched the first aid contest of the plant department of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company in the city auditorium last night, when the championship of the state of Georgia was decided. The winning team, representing the Atlanta district, was composed of R. H. Simpson, captain; A. C. Hanson, C. D. Dempsey, E. M. Yancy and A. E. Fields. The sponsor for the team was Miss Nellie Gilroy.

One would have thought he was witnessing an absorbing and important intercollegiate football game, to judge by the spontaneous enthusiasm and continuous cheering of the spectators who filled the seating capacity of the auditorium outside the main floor. The main floor was the arena for the contesting teams.

Instruction in first aid methods has been given to all of the plant forces of the telephone company during the past year. Teams were formed in each district of the state among these forces, who number about 850 men.

Eight Picked Teams.
Preliminary elimination contests were held and eight teams competed last night for the state championship, representing the Atlanta, Atlanta Suburban, Macon, Savannah and Albany districts and the Atlanta, North Georgia and South Georgia construction forces.

All the teams displayed great skill and ability and the result was close. The team representing the Atlanta district made the highest score of 99.3 per cent and was adjudged the winner. A loving cup was presented to them by Vice President E. H. Reid. This cup is to be won three times before it goes to any one team permanently and a similar state contest will be held every year.

In addition to this, Bronze medals awarded by the southern division of the American Red Cross will be presented to the members of the winning team.

First aid instruction and safety methods have resulted to a remarkable extent the number of accidents among the telephone plant forces in Georgia. The number of accidents involving loss of time was lowered from 160 in 1921 to 50 during 1922.

Army Mobilization Plans Completed After Staff Study

Washington, May 23.—A general army mobilization plan in line with the requirements of the national defense act, has virtually been completed after exhaustive general staff study and will be ready, it was learned today, to be placed in the hands of General Pershing as chief of staff before the end of June.

The plan is so extensive in scope as to provide for the mobilization of company and even smaller units of the organized reserves and National guard. It also provides for voluntary recruiting during a war emergency pending the passage of a draft act.

ATKINSON TO SPEAK TO JUNIOR CHAMBER

The chief speaker at the Junior Chamber of Commerce luncheon today will be H. M. Atkinson, chairman of the board of directors of the Georgia Railway and Power company. The subject of Mr. Atkinson's talk will be his company's recent petition to city council called "A Constructive Plan for Solving Present and Future Transportation Problems of Atlanta."

A new suburbanite was asked why he didn't make a garden. "I prefer," he replied, "to depend on the grocer for my vegetables." When I ask him for beans he doesn't give me Jimson weed instead."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

STATE SANITARIUM METHODS CHANGED

"Bedlam" of Mad House no Longer Exists—Insane Receive Treatment.

Milledgeville, Ga., May 23.—Somewhere in the Georgian Sanitarium, as in many a Georgia house, is a copy of Hogarth's famous painting of "Bedlam." It shows writhing men bound in iron, frenzied maniacs tearing at their hair with their manacled hands, and screaming lunatics pressing their faces against the bars of iron and walls of stone.

The picture is a truthful portrayal of the madhouse that was, but is no more, at least not in Georgia. In these days institutions for the insane were bedlams of confusion, where maniacs seemed to be possessed of devils, and lunatics stalked about like creatures of Dante's "Inferno." There were no doctors to care for those in mental darkness, only warders of stern men and stalwart brawn who could cope with those who obeyed their insane impulses and knew not what they did.

In those bedlams of old, all who were mentally afflicted were confined.
They were chained to cold, damp floors, their hands were bound by unyielding steel. Some were cased in dark dungeons where there was not a single ray of sunlight, or of hope.

Others were allowed to beat their bodies about in padded cells, gnaw on their own flesh, and writhe in agony.
All were among the damned until they died.

Changes Are Made.

But that was years ago. Institutions for the insane have changed since then, though many people yet have the bedlam conception of them.
Four thousand insane patients from all parts of Georgia are now being treated for mental afflictions in the Georgian state sanitarium, and not one of them is bound in chains, not one is confined in a padded cell.

In fact there are no padded cells in the entire hospital, and no handcuffs or chains, except perhaps in the cellar of the old building, where some may be kept as reminders of the days before modern science made its gigantic strides. And it has been many a year since any of those relics of the old-time bedlam have been

PROPERTY LOSS IN MEXICALI FIRE TOTALS MILLIONS

Calexico, Cal., May 23.—A careful search of the ruins in Mexicali today failed to disclose bodies of any of the persons reported to have lost their lives in the fire which swept over a block and a half in the business district yesterday afternoon and last night. All of the persons who were reported by names as having lost their lives were accounted for.

There remained a report that fourteen Chinese were trapped in the basement of a cafe and were not seen to emerge. The ruins of this building were burning tonight and firemen
and police were unable to get to the basement. Whether any of the Chinese of the Mexicali colony were missing had not been clearly established.

Pedro Gonzales, operator of a motion picture machine in the theater where the fire started, who was one of those reported dead, was located today. He said he escaped after seeing that all of the occupants of the theater got out. He blamed a faulty electrical connection for the fire. The film in the machine exploded, after which the blaze became uncontrollable.

Altogether forty-seven buildings were destroyed, most of them being small frame structures. Insurance men gave out revised estimates that the damage was slightly under $2,000,
000 about half covered by insurance.

According to Dr. Swint, in two or three days' time almost all of the patients who arrive at the sanitarium, bound and guarded are relieved of their worst insane symptoms as the result of the treatment used. And,
he points out, a large per cent of those who are insane, if given treatment soon enough, have an excellent chance for recovery in this institution, which is a hospital and not a bedlam.

Fallagan, aged 23, was drowned in the Ogeechee river at Stewart's landing yesterday. He was trying to recover an axe that had fallen into the stream. Fallagan was said to be an expert swimmer.

DIES IN MILLWOOD, GA.

Waycross, Ga., May 23.—(Special.)
Randall McDonald Bennett, age 86, pioneer settler of south Georgia, died last night at the home of his son, B.
A. Bennett, at Millwood, Ga. He had been in declining health for several weeks.

He is survived by four brothers,
D. H. of Waycross; W. L. and John W. of Pearson; J. C. L. of Millwood; two sisters, Mrs. J. M. White, of Axson, and Mrs. Joseph W. Arnold, of Texas; six sons, J. F. of Hahanta;
B. A. of Millwood; J. E. J. G. and
W. C. of Lufkin, and M. G. of Hickory; two daughters, Mrs. J. W.
Tyson and Mrs. L. H. Gatlin, of Millwood; forty-four grandchildren and eighteen great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the residence of his son, B. A. Bennett, at Millwood, this afternoon, Rev. E. A.
Martin officiating. Interment at Bennett's cemetery, near Millwood.

Italy has a national organization of disabled soldiers with nearly 400, 000 members.

There remained a report that fourteen Chinese were trapped in the basement of a cafe and were not seen
to emerge. The ruins of this building were burning tonight and firemen
and police were unable to get to the basement. Whether any of the Chinese of the Mexicali colony were missing had not been clearly established.

Altogether forty-seven buildings
were destroyed, most of them being small frame structures. Insurance
men gave out revised estimates that
the damage was slightly under $2,000,
000 about half covered by insurance.

According to Dr. Swint, in two or three days' time almost all of the patients who arrive at the sanitarium,
bound and guarded are relieved of
their worst insane symptoms as the result of the treatment used. And,
he points out, a large per cent of those who are insane, if given treatment soon enough, have an excellent chance for recovery in this institution, which is a hospital and not a bedlam.

MACHINERY GIVEN FOR BIG MEMORIAL

Noted Engineers Contribute $250,000 in Unique Contrivance to Cut Stone Mountain Monument.

"Donation of machinery which will cost more than $250,000 for carving the great Stone Mountain Confederate memorial furnishes additional evidence of the readiness of other sections of the country to contribute to this great work when Atlanta does her part," declared Robert E. Harvey, vice president and executive manager of the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial association, in a statement Wednesday afternoon regarding the donation.

How to build up your Weight

Increase your Red-Blood-Cells. That's the sure way S.S.S. builds Blood-Cells; this means strength!

Do you know why insurance companies refuse to insure a great many men because they are under weight? Simply because to be under weight often proves low fight.

Only well-developed, healthy men and women enjoy the best life.

ing-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus energy, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus. That's why S. S. S., since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Hollow cheeks fill out. You stop being a calamity-looker. You inspire confidence. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S. S. S. will build them. Take S. S. S. It contains only pure vegetable medicinal ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size is more economical.

arousing interest in the north in the Stone Mountain memorial.

"If there are any persons in Atlanta who have heretofore doubted the amount of interest already aroused in this project in far distant places, I think this magnificent donation ought to satisfy them entirely."

Country Wails for Atlanta.

"The balance of the country is ready and waiting to contribute to this great undertaking in generous amounts when the association can take the country with the announcement that Atlanta has done her part."

Announcement of the donation of the machinery to be used in placing men, materials and tools on the side of Stone Mountain was made in connection with the visit here of Mr. Barlow and Harry S. Scott, assistant chief engineer of the Brown Hoisting Machinery company, of Cleveland, which will manufacture and install the machinery.

Mr. Scott is making final surveys and measurements at Stone Mountain in preparation for installation of the first unit. It was announced by Mr. Harvey that this first unit will probably be on the mountain within thirty days.

Explains Use of Machinery.

Mr. Barlow gave the following outline of the manner in which the machinery will operate:

"Along the sheer face of the mountain, above the tops of the figures in the carving will be erected a row of immense steel booms. They will serve the same purpose as brackets for placing a shelf on a wall. Along a track on top of these brackets will operate a car with a crane for removing loose stone and dropping it to the foot of the mountain."

"Along a track hung underneath the brackets will move a gigantic pantograph. This will resemble a moving crane. It will move back and forth along the sheer face of the mountain with a lateral radius of more than 600 feet. The pantograph, or movable arm, will move up and down the mountain with a vertical radius of 200 feet. On the end of the pantograph will be a platform on which sixteen men can work at one time."

Men Will Be Safe.

"All men working on the pantograph platforms and elsewhere will be perfectly safe and secure, as much so as people riding in elevators in modern office buildings."

Mr. Barlow stated that the hoisting machinery for Stone Mountain was specially designed for this work and that nothing else like it can be found anywhere in the world.

"When these huge machines get in full operation on the sheer face of Stone Mountain," he said, "they will furnish a sight far more interesting than was the machinery used in cutting the Panama canal. That work will be the most fascinating piece of construction work anywhere in the world. It will bring here thousands of visitors."

ELBERFELD ROW RESULTS IN PROHIBITION BOND FOR WARDS

Mr. and Mrs. Hap Ward, of 222 1/2 Ivy street, were bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond on which charges Wednesday at a hearing in municipal court into an alleged brawl at the Ward apartment several weeks ago.

It was brought out in the testimony that "Kid" Elberfeld, manager of the Little Rock baseball team, was involved in the alleged fracas. As a result of the affair, a warrant is out for his arrest on charges of shooting at another.

According to witnesses, Elberfeld acted as peacekeeper, firing his revolver to disperse the brawlers. He will be arraigned in municipal court when his team plays here again in June, it is said.

The warrants against the Wards were taken out by J. O. Rivers, W. L. Banks, and J. L. Wilson. Later the Wards took out warrants against Rivers, Banks and Wilson, but they were dismissed by Judge L. Z. Rosser, Jr.

According to the evidence, the three men went to the Ward apartment to get "something to drink." Ward is said to have accused one of the callers of insulting Mrs. Ward. As the disturbance which followed was at its height, "Kid" Elberfeld appeared from a curtained doorway and began firing a revolver, it was stated by witnesses.

M'Michael Continues To Direct Criticism Against Highway Board

Reiterating his determination to carry his fight on the state highway department into the coming session of the state legislature, Representative A. H. M'Michael, of Marion county, on Wednesday issued statements making new charges against the department.

In replying to a recent statement of Chairman John N. Holder, of the highway board, in which Mr. Holder said that there was no need to press for an investigation, Mr. M'Michael asks full details on the methods of financing and building of the new building now used by the department at East Point. He asks Mr. Holder to make public "the method by which the department obtained possession" of this building. He also asks "how the chairman obtained an increase in salary," and details as to the alleged employment of publicity men by the department.

Representative M'Michael also attacks the "Form B. Contract," formerly used by the department, and charges that it was framed by the department engineers and that under it "exorbitant profits" were taken from the state by road building contractors. His statement declares that under this contract competitive bidding on contracts was virtually excluded in Georgia. He cites particular contracts for work done in Coweta county.

Mr. M'Michael further criticizes figures in a recent statement of Chairman Holder on the purchase of equipment. He says the report lists only $200,000 of equipment as bought in 1922, whereas the newspapers, in January, 1922, printed stories to the effect that the department was buying $500,000 worth and that itemized lists sent to bidders by the department called for more than $600,000 worth.

Mr. M'Michael declared that he is determined to ask a special investigation of the workings of the department when the legislature convenes and asserts that the public should know the details of the "Form B. Contract," even though its use has been discontinued by the department.

Woodward Testifies That His Wife's Money Belonged to Chinaman

Former Mayor James G. Woodward Wednesday completed his testimony before Attorney Wharton O. Wilson, appointed by Judge George L. Bell, of superior court, as auditor to take the depositions in the litigation between the former mayor and his daughter, Mrs. Nannie Renfro.

The controversy between Mr. Woodward and Mrs. Renfro came to light when municipal court proceedings were filed by the former to gain possession of household goods which he alleged was in possession of his daughter. The suit was later taken to superior court for settlement.

Judge Bell will undertake to adjust all differences between the parties, it is said.

It developed Wednesday that a considerable sum of money in the possession of the first Mrs. Woodward at the time of her death was the property of a deceased Chinese laundryman. In his deposition Mr. Woodward stated the amount was $600. His daughter is said to allege that the amount was $1,000.

Mr. Woodward stated that as executor of his wife's estate he had found that this money was in her possession and had apparently been entrusted to her by the laundryman for safekeeping years ago.

According to Mr. Woodward, the only record of the transaction is a scrap of paper resembling a laundry ticket, on which are written Chinese characters. The paper and the money is said to be in an Upson county bank.

Mrs. Renfro will testify when the hearing is resumed at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon in Judge L. Z. Rosser's courtroom.

The International Association of Policemen is planning for the establishment of a training school for policemen.

session of household goods which he alleged was in possession of his daughter. The suit was later taken to superior court for settlement.

Judge Bell will undertake to adjust all differences between the parties, it is said.

TO MAKE PUBLIC BUDGET REPORT AT LEGISLATURE

It is not probable that any report as to the recommendations and report of the state budget commission, which has been in session for the past two days and adjourned Wednesday until June 1, will be given out previous to presentation of that report to the legislature, members of the commission stated Wednesday.

The commission has spent the past two days in the office of Governor Hardwick, going over reports and fig-

Jitneys Force Rate Raise Plea, Railroad Says

Fairburn and Atlanta Line Wants 6-Cent Fare to Pay Expenses.

Application was made Wednesday with the state public utilities commission, by the Fairburn and Atlanta Railway and Electric company, for permission to increase its passenger rate between Fairburn and Atlanta from 5 cents per zone to 6 cents.

The company operates a service of passenger-carrying gas cars between Fairburn and Atlanta, and the application filed Wednesday is the result of a period of competition between these cars and various "jitneys" plying between the two places.

The company was formerly granted permission by the commission to increase its zone charge to 7 cents, but in order to meet the "jitney" competition voluntarily reduced its rate to 5 cents. Later the company itself operated a number of motor busses in competition with the independent "jitneys," and the result of the rivalry has been that both sides have lost money.

It is now claimed that the rival "jitneys" have been forced out of the business by reason of their losses. The company now proposes to discontinue its own motor busses and revert to the old method of handling all the traffic on its gas cars.

It claims that it is necessary to charge the 6-cent rate in order to operate at a profit. The zone is approximately one mile in length. Hearing of the petition has been set for June 26 in the office of the commission at the state capitol.

REIGN OF TERROR REVEALED IN PLOT

Revolutionaries Planned to Overthrow Free State and Set Up Irish Republic by Force.

BY RALPH H. TURNER.

London, May 23.—Details of a gigantic Irish plot to blow up government buildings in London and Dublin were exposed Wednesday when four Irish revolutionary leaders were placed on trial at Bow street charged with seditious conspiracy.

Overthrowing of the Irish free state and the establishment of a republic by force of arms was the aim of the huge conspiracy. Organization of secret armed bands, manufacture of explosives and a terrorization campaign were among methods to be employed, according to the crown's count.

The men on trial are Art O'Brien, attractive, well-known representative of DeValera in London; Sean McGrath, Michael Galvin and Sean Mahoney, all of whom were arrested in March, deported from Ireland and interned in England.

Complete written instructions on how to blow up and burn buildings and other property were part of the equipment of the Irish republican leaders, according to evidence.

A notebook discovered on McGrath's person when arrested was described as containing instructions for the use of various high explosives for demolition purposes, formulae were also given for the manufacture of gun-cotton, gunpowder and cordite.

A paper was also presented which, found on Galvin, gave a list of names of young men with their respective qualifications in the use of revolvers, rifles and other weapons.

Nine information booths in charge of 24 pretty young Atlanta girls, will disseminate information for the 6,000 or more visitors to the international Kiwanis convention here next week, according to announcement Wednesday at convention headquarters in the Ansley hotel.

The main booth will be maintained in the Ansley lobby, and will be occupied by four girls, prepared to answer hundreds of questions that may arise. It will open at 8 o'clock each morning and remain open until 10:30 at night.

Other booths will be operated at the terminal station and the union depot on Monday and Tuesday to direct the arrivals.

Additional booths will be placed at the Piedmont, Cecil and Wincoff hotels and Wesley hall and the auditorium.

Dr. John I. Leonard and a committee of local Kiwanians will direct the elaborate information system. On the committee are Earl Yancey, W. E. Gathright, Gus Redding, O. M. Stanton, Dr. Harry Flint, Charles W. Bernhardt and Ralph Tracy.

The usual occupation of women workers in Persia is that of carpet weaving.

OBJECT TO DELAYS AT UNION STATION RAILWAY CROSSING

An effort will be made to find a remedy against the blocking of street traffic at the Union station crossing by shunting freight and passenger cars, by bringing the matter in court this afternoon.

W. L. Taylor, a railroad conductor, Ed Whitley, an engineer, and C. H. Compton, yardmaster at the Union station, are to be arraigned in Recorder Johnson's court charged with violating that section of the city code, which forbids the blocking of railway crossing for a period longer than three minutes.

Numerous complaint have been received by the police from pedestrians and vehicular traffic drivers as to the delays occasioned by the switching of freight trains at the crossing.

Sleeping in Streets Draws Small Fine For Hard-Working Men

Twenty-four hours a day is too long for any man to work, was the ruling of Judge George E. Johnson Wednesday when Charles and Ernie Odom appeared before him. The men told the judge that they were employed as wreckers of the old Penetration Inn during the daytime and were employed on the same job during the night when their duties called for watching the material lying about.

The judge in fining the men said that he had to impose the penalty of $2 and costs each, because the men had violated the city ordinance against sleeping on the street. Not even the excuse that they were in a motor car availed the men.

Maloney Still Unable to Help Hunt Abductors

Sturdivant Says Police Are Helpless Without Definite Clues.

Due to the inability of J. A. Maloney, Kirkwood contractor, to accompany officers in search of the place where he stated he was held a captive, detectives Wednesday were without anything upon which to prosecute their investigation into Maloney's story.

"Mr. Maloney has been unable to give us any kind of a definite clue upon which to work, and our activities cannot be intelligently resumed until he accompanies us," Lieutenant T. O. Sturdivant stated Wednesday.

So far as detective records reveal, Mr. Maloney has been unable to furnish them with anything like a definite description of his assailants, who he stated held him a prisoner in a dungeon for a period of two weeks with insufficient food and sleeping comforts.

Maloney explains that he believes they were members of a bootlegging gang who were seeking revenge, because of some idea they had that he had "tipped" officers off concerning their activities. Yet he is unable to say why they should not have resorted to more drastic action than holding him prisoner.

"Pending the help Mr. Maloney has promised us in taking detectives over the territory he stated he was carried, our only work can be to try to find his watch, which he says was taken from him," Lieutenant Sturdivant stated.

Maloney said Wednesday that he was physically unable to go with the officers, but intended doing so as soon as he could.

Rum-Runners Sought Who Escaped Pursuit In Sensational Flight

County police Wednesday searched for two occupants of a rum car, who escaped capture Tuesday night as they abandoned the liquor-laden machine in front of the home of Hughes Spaulding, well-known Atlanta attorney, on the Peachtree road, making their escape across Mr. Spaulding's yard and that of J. J. Haverty.

The chase was enlivened by pistol shots, as the officers pursued. One of the men attempted to enter the back door of Mr. Spaulding's home, but the cook slammed it in his face. The car, which the officers confiscated, contained 43 gallons of corn whisky, it is said.

STABBER GETS TERM Sentence of Twelve Months for Connally.

C. R. Connally Wednesday was given a maximum sentence of 12 months' imprisonment following his conviction of stabbing.

Connally was recently indicted on two counts as the outgrowth of an alleged fight with A. M. Furelle and E. C. Durham, in which he is said to have beaten Furelle and stabbed Durham. A jury in Judge E. D. Thomas' division of Fulton superior court substantiated the indictment with a verdict of stabbing.

CHANGE IN RATES FOR SHIPPING ICE TO BE CONSIDERED

Announcement has been made by the public service commission that hearings will be held Tuesday, June 12, on a number of proposed changes in classification of freight shipments.

This proposed changes and additions to the list, have been suggested by various parties. In some cases the changes have been asked by the shippers, and in others by the carriers, while in a few instances the changes are asked by the commission itself. They apply to a wide variety of shipments, including composition roofing, insecticide sprayers, dusters and mopping machines, bearings, textile machine parts, paper, railway car or locomotive parts, vehicle parts, fruits, vegetables, cement, etc., agricultural implement parts, and others.

EMORY SEEKS PLANTS TO COST $2,000,000

Bible School and Teachers' College May Erect Plants at Local Institution.

Two new units, each to cost approximately $1,000,000, will be built at Emory University if negotiations now under way materialize, it was announced Wednesday by Dr. W. H. Cox, president of that institution. He stated that plans had been made for an Emory teachers' college, similar to the Emory University-Dekalb County school, which was recently opened, and that officials of Southeast Bible Training school are considering locating at Emory University when the school is removed from Kansas City.

"The Bible school is looking toward Atlanta and Emory favorably, and I am sure that we will be given consideration," declared Dr. Cox. The president said that the plant would be erected by the Bible school at a cost around $1,000,000, and would add 400 or 500 students to the rolls of the institution, and that the teachers' college plant would cost about the same amount. The teachers' college plant is not carried out until sufficient endowment can be obtained, Dr. Cox said.

Bishop Candler has endorsed the move of Emory to secure the Bible school here.

CARMEN ORGANIZE AT MEETING HERE TO AID EFFICIENCY

An organization which has as its object the promotion of efficiency and interest in the handling of railway matters and to advance safety on the railways of the south was formed yesterday at a meeting held at the Ansley hotel. The organization is to be known as the Southeastern Carmen's Interchange association.

All men employed by the railways, five offices, are eligible for membership. The intention of the promoters of the association is to hold discussions between the various departments of the service with a view to come to a basis of closer co-operation. The organization is not to be viewed in the light of a labor union or a craft guild, but is of a purely educational character.

The officers elected at the initial meeting at which a membership of over 300 was represented were as follows: President, T. S. Chedle, Richmond, Va.; first vice-president, L. Martin, Baltimore; second vice-president, J. T. Ross, Waycross; secretary-treasurer, J. F. Reuble, Atlanta. The following executive committee was appointed: K. A. Martin, Washington, D. C.; V. T. Parker, Atlanta, and A. M. Hilborn, Norfolk, Va.

CODY WANTS MORE MEN TO FIGHT FIRE

New Building Code for City to Be Urged to Insure Safety.

Stressing the need for 50 additional men in the Atlanta fire department, Fire Chief W. B. Cody Wednesday declared he would urge upon council the importance of increasing the personnel of the department and would also advocate an early revision of the city building code.

Many buildings now being erected in Atlanta are veritable fire traps, the chief asserted, and only by increasing the rigidity of existing building laws can this condition be corrected.

"Unless the city gives my department about 50 additional men without further delay the safety of Atlanta's citizens will be further imperiled," declared Chief Cody. "I am allowed only four men to each piece of firefighting apparatus, whereas the average in other cities of the country is from seven to twelve men."

"Atlanta has building and fire laws that are more lax than in any other southern city," said the chief, "but despite this fact my department has less men and less equipment than the other cities. There are a number of things that need to be done in Atlanta without further delay to reduce the fire hazard."

"Downtown buildings are not being equipped with sprinklers; the fire escapes are not in condition, and there are more basements in Atlanta's downtown section than in any other city of its size I ever visited. The building laws are entirely too lax and as a result, builders continue to erect frame buildings that are fire-traps pure and simple."

"The expression 'gone west' meaning dead, originated during the war. When a regiment was sent west it meant that they were going into heavy fighting and would probably never return."

Tugalo Inspection Plans Are Completed Friday For Power Officials

Final arrangements for the trip to Tugalo to be made Friday by the board of directors of the Georgia Railway and Power company have been announced, the journey having been arranged in order that power company officials may view at first hand construction work being carried on there on the huge dam and hydro-electric plant.

Owing to the necessity of making the tour of inspection in one day, a special Pullman will leave the terminal station at 6:15 o'clock Friday morning. A stop will be made at Peachtree station at 6:25 o'clock, and from there the car will be rushed on through to Tallulah lodge, arriving there at about 11 o'clock.

There the directors will make an inspection of the Tallulah Falls power station and plant and then will be taken by automobile to Tugalo, where luncheon will be served at the home of C. G. Adis, executive engineer and vice-president of the company. Following the luncheon party will be escorted over the works of the Tugalo development.

The party will be headed by H. M. Atkinson, chairman of the board, and the various phases of the work will be explained by engineers located at Tugalo who are directing erection of the dam and power plant. The directors will also have an opportunity to make a visit to the miniature city which has sprung up, populated by hundreds of workers who are employed there.

Among those who will be present on the trip are H. M. Atkinson, P. S. Arkwright, G. W. Brine, C. G. Adis, P. J. Paxon, Frank Hawkins, J. E. Murphy, T. K. Glenn, R. F. Maddox, John C. Hallman, J. D. Robinson, Mel R. Wilkinson, E. P. McBurney, W. H. Taylor, F. L. Butler, Jackson P. Dick, L. K. Starr, Albert Howell, Jr., Alfred C. Newell, Ralph Smith, Clark Howell, Jr., and Dudley Glass. Returning, the party will leave Tallulah Falls at about 4:15 o'clock in the afternoon and will arrive in Atlanta at about 7 o'clock.

DISABLED VETERANS SEEK 1,000 MEMBERS

One Hundred Already Signed as Vets Enter Second Week of Campaign.

Entering on the second week of a membership drive, the Disabled American Veterans of the World War reported Wednesday that more than 100 members had been added to the roster of the organization and that a tent in charge of a disabled soldier would be opened today at 341-2 Peachtree street, across the street from the veteran's clubrooms. The drive will end on June 15, and by that time it is predicted 1,000 new members will have been added to their applications.

The tent will be open at all times, and information of any kind pertaining to the organization can be obtained there. Dr. Louis Proesterman, chairman of the membership drive committee, said Henry R. Davis, of Georgia Tech, is leading the list for the highest number of members brought in, he having secured the applications of 35.

KEARNEY IS ACCUSED OF SALE OF DRUGS

Tom Kearney, of 12 Pulliam street, Wednesday was held at Fulton tower in default of $500 bond pending a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner W. C. Carter on charges of violating the Harrison anti-narcotic act.

It is alleged by narcotic officers that Kearney sold a quantity of morphine Wednesday morning to a person at the City Hotel. Kearney is said to have denied that he delivered the drugs, but admitted that he accepted the money.

The records of the United States patent office show that women have invented everything from a rotary plow-share to an egg-beater.

Governor's Pen Found by Porter In Visitor's Vest

Cliff Johnson Proves His Boast That He "Over-sights Nuthin' A-tall."

BY RALPH T. JONES. Sharp eyes and vivid memories sometimes prove valuable assets. This statement was verified at the state capital on Wednesday, in the experience of no less a person than Cliff Johnson, competent negro porter in the office of Governor Thomas W. Hardwick.

To begin the story at the beginning, on Tuesday afternoon just before he left the office, the governor had stopped at the desk of Julian McCurry, his private secretary, in the outer office, when a man, considerably under the influence of liquor, entered. He asked if the governor was in. Secretary McCurry was on the verge of uttering an official lie, when the governor himself answered in the affirmative and told the illuminated visitor to step into the private office and wait.

Later, after the inebriate had left, the governor's fountain and a gold pencil, engraved with his name, and which he values highly, could not be found.

Now enters the porter into the scenario.

Wednesday, in the rotunda of the capitol, a stranger appeared. Lots of strangers appear there every day. But this stranger was wearing a fountain pen, stuck in his coat pocket. Still, lots of them do.

Cliff, however, thought he recognized the pen. He asked the stranger to let him see it and, sure 'nuff, it was the governor's.

The stranger explained that he had bought it from a man the night before who claimed to have found it. He admitted he paid 50 cents for the pen. He was reimbursed, and promised to watch closely for the man who had sold it, in the hope that he might be able to locate the pencil.

But Cliff, the porter, had once again proved the proud boast he frequently makes that he "over-sights nuthin' a-tall."

WOMEN APPOINTED ON VISITOR BOARD OF STATE COLLEGE

One woman from each of the twelve congressional districts in the state was appointed by Governor Hardwick on Wednesday as a member of the board of visitors to the Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville. These appointments are for three-year terms, beginning on May 23, 1923.

The twelve women are: First district, Mrs. Julian C. Lane, Statesboro; second district, Mrs. W. C. Vereen, Moultrie; third district, Mrs. Fred Smith, Milledgeville; fourth district, Mrs. W. A. Atkinson, Newnan; fifth district, Mrs. Martha B. Moore, Bolton; sixth district, Mrs. Wallace Miller, Macon; seventh district, Mrs. M. S. Lanier, Rome; eighth district, Miss Bessie Butler, Madison; ninth district, Mrs. W. A. Roberts, Gainesville; tenth district, Mrs. H. M. Franklin, Tennesse; eleventh district, Mrs. J. B. Moore, Baxley; twelfth district, Mrs. Earl Camp, Dublin.

Standard Oil Sued After Fatal Burns To Child From Oil

A suit for $8,800.00 charging the Standard Oil company of Kentucky with selling a kerosene mixture for kerosene, it being claimed that the fluid exploded, fatally burning Lois Foute, 12-year-old daughter of Mrs. Ida Foute, of Dawson, Ga., was filed in the United States district court here Wednesday. The suit was filed several months ago in superior court of Hall county, but was transferred to the United States district court for the northern district of Georgia on petition of the defendant.

The petition alleges that on June 2, 1922, Mrs. Foute purchased from a Dawson dealer one gallon of supposed kerosene. Two days later, the petition sets forth, Lois Foute attempted to start a fire by pouring the oil upon the wood, and when she struck a match an explosion occurred. She died the following day from injuries received in the explosion, the petition asserts.

The amount of damages sought is based upon the computed earning value of the child.

Rescue Workers Ask Money to Buy Tent For Revival Meets

So that a tent may be purchased in which to hold revival meetings, the American Rescue Workers, in charge of Col. Horace Burton, have asked that citizens of Atlanta, assist them in securing the sum of $125, the amount needed to rent a tent. Col. Burton stated that W. Rawlings had loaned him the property formerly known as 45 East Ellis street, on which to hold the services, and that chairs and lumber had been secured. Dean Thomas Johnson, of Saint Philips' cathedral, and Rev. B. F. Fraser, of Wesley Memorial church, are among those expected to preach at the revival services, when the tent is obtained.

REWARD IS OFFERED FOR SHIVER'S SLAYER

A reward of $200 is being offered by Governor Hardwick for the unknown persons who killed R. L. Shiver, of Macon, at the city April 20. The reward was requested by Charles H. Garrett, solicitor of the Bibb county circuit, who declared that although every clue had been followed and several persons had been arrested in connection with the case, no evidence as to the identity of the guilty person has yet been disclosed.

PEACHTREE HILLS CIVIC CLUB MEETS

Discussion of improvements for Peachtree Hills will occupy the greater part of the time at a meeting of the newly organized Peachtree Hills Civic club, which will be held at 8 o'clock tonight, at the residence of Robert Hecht, 18 Parkside drive. Those interested in proposed projects that will benefit the community are invited, it was announced.

CONTINUOUS BILLING IS TO START JUNE 1

Power Company Officials Expel New Plan to Improve Service.

Effective with all meter readings on and after June 1 bills for retail electric and gas service will be rendered under the continuous billing method approved by the Georgia Public Service commission.

The territory has been divided into 24 sections. All meters in one section will be read on approximately the same day each month and bills will be rendered approximately five days after meter reading dates. Bills are due when rendered, and the usual discount will be allowed if bills are paid within 10 days after the due date shown on bills. The meters in the different territorial sections will be read on different days, one section on each week day during the month.

Each customer will receive his bill on approximately the same date each month. The expiration of his discount period will fall on approximately the same date each month. Under the old plan, which is to be superseded on and after June 1 all bills were due on the first of each month and the discount period expired on the 10th of each month for all customers. This is changed under the new plan. It is important that each customer, when receiving bills under the new plan, should carefully note the due date and the discount date stamped or printed on his bill, according to power company officials.

As the method of billing is to be changed on June 1, it will be necessary to render bills for May sales on June 1 also. Some customers will later in the month receive another bill under the new plan for service rendered after the last meter reading date on the May sales bill. Both of these bills are to be paid, as they cover different meter reading periods. The continuous billing method has for some time been in general use in cities of the United States having a population of 100,000 or over, and in many cities of smaller population. It prevents congestion and saves the loss of time suffered by customers under the old method which has been in vogue in Atlanta. It also results in an opportunity to give more careful attention to customers' requests for information when paying bills. The plan has worked satisfactorily.

Olson Hurls Defiance At Improvement Club Which Told Him to Quit

Declaring that he has no intention of resigning, but will in all probability announce his candidacy for reelection at the September primary, Councilman J. H. Olson, of the eleventh ward, Wednesday, issued a statement replying to the resolutions demanding his resignation adopted Tuesday night by the Eleventh Ward Improvement club.

Councilman Olson attributed the action of the club to Homer C. Denton, secretary, who ran against him for the office at the last election. The former stated he would ignore the attack upon him which he said was inspired by "political enemies."

DANGER SIGNALS OF INDIGESTION

The Disease That Strikes Like Lightning.

Beware of indigestion—the disease that kills more people and kills them quicker than any other. This warning, by physicians, is particularly applicable this season of the year, when your system "lets down" in tone and vigor with the first approach of warm weather.

What are the warnings that nature gives you of the approach of indigestion? The medical books tell us: 1. Gas, which means that your food is fermenting instead of digesting. 2. A feeling of fullness or oppression in the region of the stomach after eating. This means that the gas has ballooned your stomach and is pressing up against your heart and lungs. 3. A dull, lazy feeling, which means that you are not getting nourishment from what you are eating. 4. Restlessness, unrefreshing sleep, which means that the poisons of indigestion are disturbing your brain and nerves. 5. Sometimes, pain and fluttering around the heart, though this symptom may come later.

Don't take chances with indigestion—you are too apt to lose. If you have had any of the symptoms mentioned above, get your digestive organs to work at once with Dan-Nax, the greatest prescription that was ever written for a digestive tonic. Dan-Nax immediately aids and assists every one of your digestive organs, including the stomach, liver and bowels. Dan-Nax makes your digestion "perfect and complete." You feel its helpful effect from the very first dose. Get a bottle of Dan-Nax today at any drug store. The GREATEST CORD IMPROVEMENTS of Recent Years!

These Miller developments make satisfactory service sure!

It takes more than good materials to give satisfactory tire mileage. They must be so evenly balanced that you get full value from every one!

Uniform Cord Construction

For years, tire builders have considered it impossible to lay cords evenly on a tire. Some layers would be shorter than others. These short layers would break first.

By a distinctive process, Miller Tires are built with absolutely uniform cord construction. The strain of wear is evenly distributed over the entire carcass.

Flat Top Tread and Supple Carcass

The Miller flat tread and balanced, supple carcass still further increase the mileage of Miller Tires. These features reduce friction in the carcass—give more road contact and longer life in tread and carcass.

You cannot get all of these advantages in any other tire. That is why Miller Cords always save you money—time—trouble, in passenger and commercial use. Authorized Miller dealers insure proper treatment.

PEKIN ACCEPTS SCHURMAN'S PLAN

Chinese Government to Send International Committee to Open Negotiations With Bandits.

Washington, May 23.—Mesger of official advices from China today contained no information except that the Pekin diplomatic corps at the suggestion of Jacob Gould Schurman, the American minister, planned to send an "international commission" to Tientsin with instructions to investigate and report relative to the negotiations for the release of foreigners held captive by Chinese bandits.

There was no intimation in an announcement issued by the state department that the commission would be empowered to deal with the bandits directly in the name of the government's representatives, thus waiting the obligation of the Pekin government to procure the release of the prisoners. The function of the international commission apparently was confined to investigation.

After 48 hours.

Minister Schurman's brief message came after a silence of nearly 48 hours which state department officials were at a loss to explain. Reference was made by him, however, to a full report he had forwarded on a meeting of the Pekin diplomats which began Monday. Such a message has not been received here and it is assumed that complete understanding of today's advices and of the specific purposes of the international commission plan depends upon the missing cablegrams.

In Washington diplomatic circles the decision of the Pekin diplomats to send a commission to the scene of the negotiations with the bandits was construed to mean that the situation had entered on a new phase. This feeling was based upon the belief that the project was a forerunner of the direct negotiations between the foreign officials and the brigand leaders, superseding the efforts of the Pekin government.

In one way passage of the day without advices to indicate whether the bandits had made good their threat to execute some of the prisoners if their demands were not complied with by the Chinese government by Tuesday caused relief. It was assumed that had any of the prisoners been killed word would have come through promptly, and it is now believed the bandits' threat was a gesture.

No Immediate Danger.

In diplomatic circles familiar with Chinese conditions and habits of thought, the opinion was expressed that the prisoners were in no immediate danger of death, whatever might be their sufferings from exposure, lack of food and unhealthful surroundings.

Neither at the state department nor in Chinese or other diplomatic circles here so far as known has any information been received tending to substantiate an explanation of the outrage carried in Tientsin dispatches from Pekin, which described the diplomatic corps as being well confined that high Chinese officials instigated the kidnapping of the foreigners in the furtherance of their own political schemes.

It is thought possible in official circles that the commission mentioned by Minister Schurman may have been appointed to determine whether such a conspiracy exists.

Pending further official advices, plans for more aggressive measures in China are still held in abeyance.

VACANCY FILLED IN SAVANNAH P. O.

John J. McDonough Appointed Postmaster by President Harding—Native of Savannah.

Washington, May 23.—John J. McDonough, Jr., was appointed by President Harding today to be postmaster at Savannah, Ga.

Savannah, Ga., May 23.—The advice from Washington today of the recess appointment of John J. McDonough, Jr., to be postmaster here was not surprising, though there was a rumor that efforts would be made to hold up the recommendation of the postmaster general upon protest of other applicants who did not get on the list of eligibles. The appointment has been expected daily. Three eligibles were in the running, present Postmaster W. R. Gignallatt, and former Postmaster Marion Lucas.

Both stood well up on the list, but following a visit of party inspectors some weeks ago it was conceded that McDonough would get the plum. Mr. McDonough is a native of Savannah and has been in the foundry business with his father. He was in Atlanta and other places in the automobile business for several years until three years ago when he came back to this city.

Allies Abandon Formal Session Of Peace Parley

Take Action to Avoid Rupture of Conference Over Greco-Turk Differences.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Lausanne, May 23.—The allies have abandoned a formal session of the Near East conference probably until Saturday in order to seek a settlement of troublesome problems, avoid a rupture of the conference and find a solution of the Greco-Turk differences arising over reparations. An effort is being made to straighten out the reparations matter by inducing Greece to cede some territory to Turkey in return for renunciation of an indemnity.

The British delegation has issued a long statement reviewing the work and affirming that much has been accomplished. It adds that both the allies and Turkey want peace but "there is no longer a shortcut to the end all are seeking."

The British statement says that the allies have prepared a new formula for judicial safeguards for foreigners in Turkey, which they hope will at least afford a basis for discussion and concludes with an appeal for patience, because the allies are dealing with a new Turkish government which is intensively sensitive with regard to its sovereign rights.

Robs Calomel Of Nausea and Danger

Medicinal Virtues Retained and Improved—Dangerous and Sickening Qualities Removed. New Tablet Called "Calotab."

The latest triumph of modern science is a "de-nauseated" calomel tablet known to the drug trade as "Calotab." Calomel, the most generally useful of all medicines, thus enters upon a wider field of popularity, purified and refined from those objectionable qualities which have heretofore limited its use.

In biliousness, constipation, headaches and indigestion, and in a great variety of liver, stomach and kidney troubles calomel was the most successful remedy, but its use was often neglected on account of its sickening qualities. Now it is the easiest and most pleasant of medicines to take. One Calotab at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no griping, no nausea, no salts. A good night's sleep and the next morning you are feeling fine, with a clean liver, a purified system and a big appetite. Eat what you please. No danger.

Calotabs are sold only in original, sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family package; ten cents for the small, trial size. Your druggist is authorized to refund the price as a guarantee that you will be thoroughly delighted with Calotab.—(adv.)

of various features of good road development will be shown.

The principal speakers on Friday's program include Gordon Saussey, of Savannah, his subject being "The Future Man Power of Georgia," and J. A. LaPrace, of Washington, D. C., senior sanitary engineer of the United States health service, on "Malaria, Drainage and Road Culverts."

Other actions of the convention during the second day will include the reports of committees, election of officers and selection of the next convention city.

At noon Friday they will be entertained at a "new" fashioned barbecue at the agricultural college.

ROME WANTS NEXT MEET OF OFFICERS.

Rome, Ga., May 23.—(Special.)—Nine prominent Floyd counties led Rome today for Americus to attend the annual meeting of the Georgia Association of County Officers, very hopeful of having the association hold its next meeting here.

J. R. Cantrell, W. P. Bradfield, T. C. Aubrey and J. E. Camp, members of the Floyd county board of commissioners; J. D. Hanks, secretary of the board; Kieffer Lindsay, county engineer; Nat Harris, county attorney; E. E. Lindsey, chairman of the city board of commissioners, and Judge Mose Wright, of the superior court, comprise the Floyd delegation.

Assurances of support for Rome have been received from many counties in this section of Georgia, the commissioners state, and they feel their chances of landing the meeting are good.

ECONOMIC LOSS DUE TO INVASION TOTALS HUGE SUM

Chicago, May 23.—General Henry T. Allen, commander of the American forces on the Rhine before their recall, declared today before the Chicago association of commerce that the "invasion of the Ruhr has caused an economic loss to the world of 5,000,000,000 francs in business and production."

General Allen declared destiny demands America's participation in conference affecting world affairs and that isolation is impossible.

Here are the physical reasons why Royal Cords have been delivering the excess value you have heard so much about

The New Sprayed Rubber—the first rubber produced by scientific process from the rubber latex. Uniform in quality. Acid-free, and uncontaminated with smoke residues or foreign matter.

The New Web Cord—for the first time a rubber-webbed cord structure without tie-threads. Impregnated through and through with pure rubber by direct use of the latex itself. Not to be confused with the practice of using rubber solutions.

The New Flat Band Method of Building Tires—a new method ensuring the positive length, angle, tension and strength of each cord. A uniform tire equalized throughout in resiliency and resistance to wear.

WITH the announcement of these three "U. S." discoveries, now being published in detail in the newspapers and magazines—car owners are given the physical explanation for Royal Cord leadership and dominance.

The question of tire value is taken out of the realm of opinion and put on the solid ground of demonstrable fact.

The motorist who has been planning to use Royal Cords in 1923 has now before him a still fuller confirmation for his belief in Royal Cord Tires.

To dealers the significance is this: car-owners are anxious for U. S. Royal Cords, and even now are seeking the dealer who has an adequate Royal Cord stock. Tire users want Royal Cords straightaway—and will go where they can get them.

RIOTING IN RUHR TAKES HEAVY TOLL

Five Persons Killed and Between 60 and 80 Wounded in Demonstrations at Dortmund.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Dortmund, May 23.—Five persons were killed, including one woman and one child, and from sixty to eighty persons were wounded last night in conflicts between striking workmen and the police, according to the casualty lists issued by both the workers and the police.

The Dortmund police and citizenry tonight were forming a self-protection force against the riotous elements. This force is being armed with clubs, as firearms are forbidden by the French. The German police say the strikers are organized into units, each of one hundred men, and are well supplied with automatic pistols. Many thousands of strikers attended mass meetings in Dortmund, Bochum, and other towns in the mining district, and pressed Russians to use every effort to extend the strike throughout the Ruhr and the Rhineland. It is estimated 60,000 men have quit work in the Dortmund district. Most of these are coal miners who went on strike last week, but have been joined in the last few days by workmen from two big iron and steel plants. The strikers are demanding a 50 per cent increase in wages because of the high cost of living and the depreciation in the value of the mark.

Speakers at the meeting today said the men were on a "hunger strike." They cited prices to show that the cost of living had doubled in the last few days.

Direct action against the rising cost in living was taken today in two towns, Steele and Kay, where so-called German commissions of control made the rounds of stores and markets and compelled dealers to reduce their prices by half or more. Sometimes these so-called members of the commissions in stores to supervise sales and handle the cash. Many women accompanied the commissions on their rounds and took immediate advantage of the new bargain prices the commissions enforced. German officials describe the strikers as communists, but the communist leaders say the workers include men of all parties.

The Berlin government is declared to be greatly concerned over the strike and to have sent observers here to make a report on the movement. A number of the newspapers blame the agitation on "foreigners." One of them charges that the French have encouraged the strike. The Dortmund railroad men in a statement describe the strike as "more political than economic."

Manila, May 23.—The army transport Merritt sailed today for San Francisco carrying 540 Russian refugees, who, expelled from Vladivostok for their monarchistic sympathies and after wandering homeless down the coast of China, finally have found a home under the Stars and Stripes. The Russians have been quartered at the Mariveles quarantine station for four months under the care of the Red Cross, which has spent $25,000 on food and clothing for them.

STAREK PROMISES WAR FINANCE AID

Encouraging Estimate of Business Conditions Given in Statement by Acting Head of Corporation.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, May 23.—An encouraging estimate of business conditions and a promise of further help by the War Finance Corporation was contained in a statement made today by Fred Starek, acting head of the corporation, after a conference with President Harding.

Mr. Starek declared that, despite the impression in many quarters, the corporation was making no effort to force liquidation of the loans of many millions of dollars it has outstanding, and predicted that congress would be asked at its next session to pass additional legislation for the relief of cattle interests in the southwest whose herds have been taken into Mexico for grazing. He asserted that in the main, however, the country's present grievances lie in sensible thinking and hard work rather than in legislation.

As managing director of the finance corporation Mr. Starek recently made a tour of the south and west, traveling many thousands of miles by airplane and inquiring into the financial condition of many industries. He reported the results of this canvass to the president at their conference today.

"I discovered no cause for gloom anywhere, but every reason for optimism," said the finance corporation head, discussing his survey of business conditions. "With the exception of certain isolated portions of the northwest, the agricultural regions I traversed suffered the most acutely from post-war deflation and demoralization, and from drought and other natural causes like the boll weevil, and yet even in these sections people regard the future cheerfully. Naturally a croak or two was heard, otherwise that word would have to be expunged from the dictionary.

"If confidence does not permeate all parts of the country, it must be due chiefly to temperamental or psychological causes, for the United States is really on a sound, prosperous basis, although the prosperity may not yet be so evenly spread as to produce universal satisfaction.

Germany has 2,457 completely blind world war veterans. Sixty per cent have taken up other careers than they followed before being blinded; 12.5 per cent remained in their former employment, and 7.5 per cent are occupied a part of the time.

PROSPERITY WAVE

seems to be smaller profits as the volume of business increases. Labor is credited with getting most of the turnover; stockholders diminishing returns. How long this condition will last is a matter of guessing. The consensus of employer opinion is that sooner or later labor and material costs will come down before a solid and normal stage of business has been reached. The chief complaint made in the basic manufacturing lines is over wage scales and inadequate supplies of both skilled and unskilled labor.

Immigration Question.

Present restrictions on immigration are held responsible for the failure of manufacturing industries to secure adequate profits. No relief is expected in this respect until after the general election next year because of the timidity of political leaders to incur the displeasure of the organized trades unions. One effect of the labor shortage, however, has been to increase the number of "open shops" in various lines of industry.

There is no denying the fact that most of the farmers of the country are discontented with the economic situation, for which they hold politicians responsible and from whom they continue to demand measures designed to relieve the agricultural industry. The chief complaints of the farmers are due to low prices, overproduction, restricted markets, inadequate transportation facilities, alleged favoritism for manufacturing industries and financial interests, state rather than federal taxes, and unsatisfactory returns due to lack of co-operation and co-ordination of agricultural productivity.

All of these things combine to add to the legitimate grievances of the farmers and make him susceptible to the teachings of professional calamity howlers and apostles of discontent who, through various agencies, are attempting to bring about a combination of agriculture and labor on a program embracing communism, syndicalism and other formulas suggesting soviet inspiration.

Solving Own Problems.

In some sections of the country the farmers are turning their backs on the politicians and attempting to solve their problems through the application of economic correctives. In these sections there is a minimum of complaints and little, if any, radicalism. Notable examples of the effect of the value of economic co-operation as distinguished from political ventures are provided by California, Massachusetts, Kentucky, Iowa, Wisconsin, Maine and the cotton states of the south, where co-operative production and marketing are growing in favor.

One of the most significant political as well as economic developments of recent years was the conversion of Townley, the creator of the non-partisan league, into a state, in a state made by Townley late in March, the creator of the non-partisan league frankly expressed his opinion that the movement toward agrarian socialism, sponsored by Townley, was a failure. Townley said he had become convinced by reason of his experience, that the "trade of the farmer is farming, and he finds this out and appreciates it, the better off he will be."

Many thousands of Townley's followers in the Dakotas, Montana, Oregon, Colorado and Nebraska are still to be disillusioned. At any rate, the program proposed by some of the N. P. L. leaders in these states, urging the continuation of the experiment which has resulted in economic disaster, involving the failure of hundreds of banks, widespread political theories of a radical character.

Discontent Receding.

In the majority of agricultural states, however, the wave of discontent appears to be melting away before the sun of prosperity. Promising crop conditions, slow but steady improvement in price conditions have filled the attention of many farmers on their farms and away from political agitators. Any release, however, would serve to revive and extend the area of discontent. It is a singular fact developed by diligent inquiry in all parts of the country that farmers generally have only a hazy idea as to the value of the benefits provided by legislation in the guise of farm credits and remedial projects designed to improve their condition. Most of the farmers in all parts of the country share the opinion that politicians will get the lion's share of such benefits.

Leaders of both political parties admit that independence is growing among the voters, both in the urban and rural sections of the country. They further admit that if these independents could be co-ordinated and organized into one group the resulting movement would put both parties on the defensive. Up to date, however, there has not crystallized in any section of the country a single movement which promises to provide the nucleus around which a new party might be formed.

Regarded as Stagnant.

Both the republican and democratic parties are regarded as stagnant. A great deal of so-called progressive sentiment seethes beneath the surface. In certain sections of the country it takes one form, and in other regions another. There is no uniformity about them. No immediate vent through which to express ambition in concrete form.

The republican organization appears to be in much better condition than the opposition, for several logical reasons. Control of the federal government is naturally the foundation upon which republican strength is built. The democrats are split into sectional groups, those of the south holding the position of the greatest strategic value. There is no reason to expect any modification of the right of the south to assert control of the democratic party.

The republican national organization presented an undivided front until Mr. Harding projected his international court idea into the political equation. His suggestion to declare adherence to the protocol of the international court which was set up by the league of nations, has already caused a split in his party but the extent in the international court idea has been chiefly academic and confined to professional, political, civic and religious circles. The public generally appears apathetic toward all foreign propositions, and to be much more interested in domestic affairs.

One point, however, there is a concurrence of view regarding the effect of the president's proposal. Leaders of both parties admit that his suggestion has added to the prestige of former President Wilson and brought to the support of the league a great many thousands of citizens who voted their disapproval of it when Mr. Harding was elected.

If there is any one single event of a foreign nature that makes a general appeal, it is the proposal advanced by Senator Borah in the world country invite concerted international expression against war and the adoption of measures calculated to discourage the causes for international conflict.

The people of the country generally seem to be reconciled to the federal tax program rendered necessary by America's participation in the world war. Various groups continue to urge the restoration of excess profits and surtaxes as expedients to increase the national revenues and provide money with which to finance claims made by important political groups demanding special privileges—the bonus for able-bodied soldiers and pork barrel enterprises among others.

In sections of the country there is heard complaint against state local taxes. The truth is that state, county, and in many instances, municipal government units, have been indulging in an orgy of bond issues for the last ten years to finance raids for various forms of public improvements, the establishment and maintenance of institutions far beyond the needs of the people. Some of these bond issues are now coming due and the taxpayer is finding that he has got to pay the bill. Hence the wail of farmers and industrialists which is generally heard throughout the west and northwestern states.

Excess Appropriations.

Another evil which has grown out of the control acquired by groups inexperienced in the administration of government is the carelessness with which state legislatures have appropriated money far in excess of income. Some of the state legislatures controlled by farmer-labor and radical groups have passed appropriation bills calling for far more money than was in sight. This condition prevails in Oklahoma, Montana, Oregon, Texas, Colorado, Nebraska and Indiana. In Oklahoma the legislature recently passed bills appropriating ten million dollars more than the annual revenues of the state.

Confusion of ideas and embroiled ventures are the outstanding features in both parties, excepting one very important phase. Professional leaders and citizens generally agree the president can and will be nominated if he wants another term. Most of the republican leaders believe that the president will not do anything to stop his party from nominating him and that the party machinery, supported by federal patronage, will go the rest.

There are a number of leaders who believe that Mr. Harding will be re-elected well before the next convention by the time the next nominating convention rolls around. These men assert that the demand for Mr. Harding's nomination will be purely professional and will lack popular support.

Fight Approaching.

If the president takes himself out of the situation, there will be something approaching a dog fight to determine who is to be the residuary legatee. There will be many contenders for the job—Johnson, Borah, Wadsworth, Pepper, Bertrige, Watson, and a number of men who might be described as being "under cover."

Of course, Mr. La Follette will figure somewhere in the mix-up. The leaders of both parties do not believe that he can win the republican nomination, on that the democrats would take him on under any circumstances. His status at the present time is pretty much the same as it was three years ago. He could then have had an independent nomination, conferred by a miscellaneous group of irregulars, made up of socialists, radical farmers, the red element of labor, altruists in the intelligentsia school, and other reformers who are classified by the professionals as "vague theorists" and "nuts."

Mr. La Follette will undoubtedly prove an irritating factor in the republican situation during the coming session of congress. If he can hold the support that now seems assured, he will be in position to dictate legislative results, because of the slender margin of republican control in both houses. There is no denying the fact that Mr. La Follette has a large following in many of the western states—Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Washington, Colorado, Iowa, Oklahoma, West Virginia, Michigan and Illinois.

Strength of Henry.

Paralleling Mr. La Follette's hold on insurgent republican and radical sentiment is the surprising strength developed by the promoters of the movement to pin the democratic nomination on Henry Ford, the motor manufacturer and richest man in the country. He is strong with the agricultural division in some states, particularly with the independent group. Whether Mr. Ford is ambitious to secure the democratic nomination is known only to himself.

Ford agencies are generously scattered throughout the country and constitute a very effective organization which would yield a great deal of power to a political nature. It is the opinion of many democratic leaders that Mr. Ford can walk away with the democratic nomination or beat an independent candidate preferred by the nominating convention of that party.

The more conservative element among the democrats, however, believe that a man of the type of Senator Kaestgen of Indiana, or Underwood, of Alabama, will be named. Mr. McAdoo has many supporters in the smaller western states and a few in the south. Mr. Cox is also not without friends. On only foreign form, he could command the support of the delegates from Ohio, his own state, and Kentucky, with many of the most important states in the union. A contest between Mr. Cox and Mr. McAdoo, the former would get the support of most of the eastern and some of the western states.

Liquor Chief Irritant.

The liquor problem still continues to be the chief irritant to the democratic party and less harassing to the republicans. Among republicans that their party will take the dry end of the argument. The democrats appear to be hopelessly split over prohibition. Those of the south favor the dry policy, while those of the Atlantic coast states, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri and one or two of the Pacific coast states, are moist or wet. The wet democrats prefer Governor Smith, of New York, on the theory that he is sympathetic with their ambitions to compel a modification of the Volstead act.

Generally speaking, the prohibition policy has been accepted as conclusive and permanent by the people in the southern and some of the western states. In these sections of the country the effort of the democratic leaders in some of the eastern states to make the liquor question the campaign issue of the next presidential campaign does not meet popular approval.

The women of the country, while not figuring in the aggressive way, are steadily improving their position in politics. Most of the states have given women an equal share in representation on political committees. In 19 states women sit in legislative bodies.

The international commission proposed by Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, the American minister, at the Peking conference, has been sent to the bandit center in Shantung to investigate and report regarding the opportunities of liberating the Americans and other foreigners held captives. If this commission reports favorably, direct negotiations probably will be opened with the bandits. This is the first attempt on the part of the foreign powers to act independently to the Chinese government. It was made reluctantly and only after the diplomatic corps became fully convinced that further efforts to work through the Peking government would get them nowhere.

tain of the captives have already been lowered down the precipitous sides of the mountains to paths leading to the valley bottom where they would be still kept under bandit guard.

REVOLUTION IN CHINA.

ALMOST CERTAIN.

BY RODNEY F. DUTCHER.

Chicago, May 23.—A revolution in China is almost a certainty within the next two years. Out of it may come a strong leader who will bring the big Oriental nation the "new day" she has often been promised and is still waiting for.

This prediction is made by the Rev. Father Basmo-Hagpiel, S. V. D., who returned Wednesday from an 18-months' tour of the Far East and the south seas.

Father Hagpiel characterized China as a big machine, with four flat tires, a broken engine and an indifferent chauffeur, but with a big tankful of gas.

The principle trouble with China, he thinks, is that her officials are not working for China, but for themselves. Every general has his treasury, and the common people are neglected.

The missionary confirmed many of the things recently read and written about the Chinese bandits, declaring that they are holding the Chinese in mortal terror. Father Hagpiel saw them burn three villages to the ground when the populace refused to allow them to billet in their homes and public buildings.

"The government cannot cope with the bandits," he said. "It is useless to expect them to do anything, and opinion in China is almost unanimous that only foreign power can intervene, preferably American."

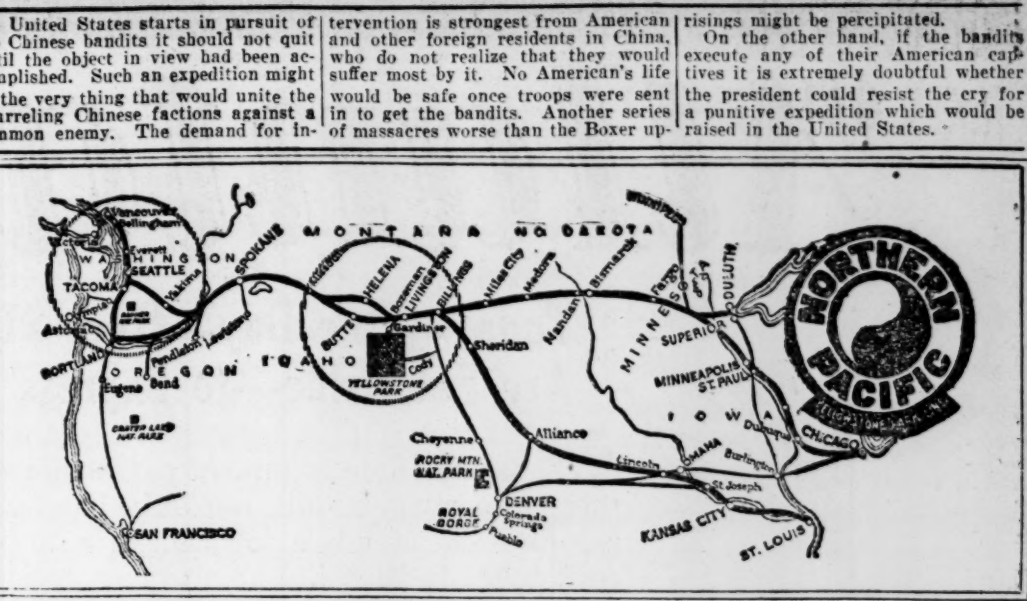

Bandits Old Soldiers.

"A large number of the bandits are old soldiers, who were discharged from the army when the government found itself unable to pay them. Many of them were not paid in the army for two or three years. Now these men want a share of their back pay and they want to be reinstated in the army."

The Rev. Frank William Leffers, S. V. D., a former classmate of Father Hagpiel, now in charge of Catholic missionary work at Ling Chong, has been one of the most active intermediaries in the negotiations which have been carried on between the government and the bandits.

"The bandits trust him," Father Hagpiel explained. "They know he is not a business man—they know he is not holding out his hand, only in a helping way. Of everyone else, nearly, they have their suspicions."

Speaking more directly of his own work in China, the missionary priest declared that there are now 100,000 converts to Catholicism in south Shantung.

Where—this summer?

THIS is the time of year when the Prospective Vacationist knits her pretty brow and asks herself, "Where—this summer?" The best of all possible answers is:

Yellowstone Park

Do you realize that a round trip ticket from Atlanta to the park costs only $94.50 and that the standard Yellowstone Park tour can be made for $54 if you stay at hotels—$45 at the camps? Meals, lodging and motor transportation are included.

Last year, two hundred thousand people made the Yellowstone, Pacific Northwest trip and their only regret was that it was not longer. Beyond Yellowstone is the great

Pacific Northwest

Too expensive? No! Greatly reduced round-trip rates, May 15 to September 30, to pretty nearly everywhere in the Great Northwest.

What's there to do and see? So many things that if you stayed twice as long as you will, you would not see or do half of them.

- Butte, the greatest of world's mining camps.
 - Helena, city of gold and romance.
 - Missoula, gateway to the Flathead and Bitter Root countries—two of the most delightful mountain regions in America.
 - Spokane, capital of the Inland Empire. Location of one of America's fine hotels—the Davenport.
 - Portland, the Rose City, beautifully situated on the Columbia with snow-tipped Mt. Hood on the horizon.
 - Seattle and Tacoma, those lusty young giants of the North Coast.

Trees Will Be Dedicated At Wren's Nest Saturday

An event of unusual interest taking place Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Wren's Nest, the home of the famous folk lore writer, Joel Chandler Harris, will be the dedication of two memorial trees, one in memory of the great author, and one in memory of Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie, writer, poet and at the time of her death historian of the Uncle Remus Memorial association. The tree in memory of Mr. Harris, and chosen by him as his monument, is a beautiful tulip tree which stands at the left of the steps at the entrance to the home. The memorial tree, from the Southern club, of Peoria, Ill., to be placed on the tree, will be unveiled by Mr. Harris' granddaughter, Miss Mildred Camp, who is also the queen of last year's May festival, Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools in Atlanta, will make the principal address, and a letter of presentation from the Peoria club will be read by Mrs. R. F. Connolly, hostess in the home. The tablet was given through the interest of Mrs. J. R. Binford, of Peoria, who visited the home of Joel Chandler Harris on a recent trip south, and on her return sent from the Southern club the tablet which is to be unveiled. The inscription on the tablet includes the words of a famous author, "Let This Tree Be My Memorial." Presented by the Southern club, Peoria, Ill., December 9, 1922. Mr. Harris' birthday falls on December 9, and is celebrated throughout America through the efforts of the Uncle Remus Memorial association.

In Memory of Mrs. Wylie. Mrs. A. M. Wylie, president of the Uncle Remus Memorial association, and life-long friend of Mrs. Wylie, will make the address and will dedicate the tree, a lovely tree planted by the Uncle Remus Memorial association in memory of Mrs. Wylie. Little Miss Charlotte King, beautiful granddaughter of Mrs. Wylie, will unveil the bronze tablet on the tree, and Dorothy Coxie, president of the Writers' club, of which Mrs. Wylie was president for many years, will read the poem written by Mrs.

Mrs. H. G. Hastings, recording secretary of the Uncle Remus Memorial association, which position she has held since its organization fourteen years ago, has arranged the program for the dedication of memorial trees at Wren's Nest Saturday.

When Hearts Command

BY ELIZABETH YORK MILLER

"It also saved me much painful explanation to poor Alice. It is better for her to think her father was dead—for you know, dear Christopher, she would never hope the poor fellow would ever be released. So I thought it was much better to go on as we were, and Alice, I am sure, will you, dear Christopher? Well, I told her I had grown so used to the idea that I nearly overlooked mentioning it to you. It is a small thing but important, really, since Alice will be living in London and you will be coming here."

"There followed messages to the family, a little more fulsome and affectionate than usual, winding up with the remark that she really must at this time leave her home, as it was growing late—a letter, the shortest of which ran to eight crowded pages. Jean came back to bed at two o'clock. She had done all that she could do, but no one could prevent Christopher Smarke's reply. No one could say what Christopher's stern, broad direct him to do in the matter. She dreamed about Christopher, an unusual dream because the scene of it was laid in a by-gone age. There was a village green and Christopher Smarke in Quaker dress—how perfectly it suited his long lined severity—frowning, with folded arms, upon a wretched woman he had condemned to sit in the stocks. And the woman was Jean, herself! A young and pretty and terrified Jean with little boys peering at her and more virtuous maidens than she passing by with half-averted, self-righteous eyes. Christopher, grim as his own conception of God, stared upon her with moody satisfaction.

"She awoke from this dream in a cold perspiration. Yes, it was true enough—Christopher Smarke loved punishing people, particularly women. If there had been a leg for him to stand upon, he would have blamed her for Hugo's misfortune. Undoubtedly he would disapprove of this crooked business of letting Alice believe that Hugo was merely her uncle. But the real truth could never in this world be revealed to Christopher. After all, it was none of his affair.

Jean turned over with a groan and tried to go to sleep again. In the morning she found that about her dream and put Christopher Smarke completely out of her mind, once the water had been posted. What was the good of worrying about it? Everybody said she worried too much, and so far they had been proved right.

There was so much to do that day that Hugo set aside his business, reviewed which was a business, and devoted himself to the more manual labor of packing and assisting to get the villa closed up. He was there, however, and every day, so that he was able and helpful, instead of being

FRIENDS NOTICED IMPROVEMENT

Wonderful Results from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Bethel, Wis.—My female trouble was brought on by overwork. I had worked in stores and had to do heavier work than my strength could stand, and had to be on my feet most of the time. Finally I had to leave this work entirely and come home. Doctor's medicine did not give me much relief, and my mother wanted me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took a couple of bottles of it and thought it did not help me as much as I should, so I gave it up to try something else. Nothing I took helped me much, so I finally decided to give the vegetable Compound another trial and to take enough of it to make sure it would help me. I have taken it over a year now and it has brought wonderful results. I have gained from 8 to 110 pounds and am keeping house now. My friends all notice the change in my health. I will be glad to answer all letters that women write me about the Vegetable Compound. —Mrs. W. G. MONSON, 1515 Ark Ave., Beloit, Wis.

Mrs. Monson is willing to write to any woman suffering from such troubles.

by getting in the way. He liked nothing so much as helping. It was only in idleness that his busy brain turned to thoughts of mischief. Give Hugo something to do and you had no bother with him.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Save Your Pans. When food sticks to the cooking utensil, use a clothespin to loosen it. Instead of a knife, and you will not scratch your pans.

In the Dairy. All the sanitary precautions for housing the dairy herd will be of no avail if the utensils used in handling the milk are not kept clean.

Painted Walls. If the painted walls are cleaned while they are wet with steam the job will be much more easily accomplished.

Protect Their Sight. Discourage the youngster who wants to read "just a little while" in bed in order to become sleepy. Reading in bed overtaxes eyes that have already done a day's work.

Sugared Honey. If the honey should become sugared it will be smooth and clear again if the jar is placed in hot water for several hours, being careful that none of the water gets into the honey.

Atlantans will be interested in the celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the Waldorf-Astoria to take place next week in New York. In the current issue of "Tavern Topics," the Waldorf magazine, there is a charming picture of Sydney P. Cooper, Jr., and Miss Mary Louise Jackson Cooper, of Henderson, N. C., Waldorf-Astoria guests of the third generation.

These little folks are the great-grandchildren of the late Colonel and Mrs. Renfroe, and the grandchildren of the late Mr. and Mrs. Howell Jackson, of Atlanta. Their mother was formerly Miss Mary Lou Jackson, now Mrs. Sydney Perry Cooper, of North Carolina. Mrs. Cooper is the state president of the Federation of Women's Clubs, and was a guest in Atlanta during the recent bi-annual council.

News From LaGrange College.

Dr. Daisy Robinson, of the United States public health service, made an address Friday evening to the student body of the college on health statistics of the world. An appeal was made to every girl concerning the care of her health.

The Y. W. C. A. vesper services of Sunday evening were in charge of the senior class. Miss Lois Brand made the principal talk. Miss Susie Ogle, accompanied by Miss Ruth Cotton, sang Carl Rodney's "Calvary."

Miss Jennie Lou Lumpkin read the scripture lesson and Miss Varina Dunbar led prayer.

Carl Meadows, a LaGrange High school boy, appeared in the college auditorium Friday evening as Omar, the magician, and entertained a large audience with sleight-of-hand tricks. Through his generosity, the entire proceeds went to the Rufus Smith memorial library.

Examinations began on Saturday, May 19.

The visitors to the college during the past week-end were Misses Lucella Frank, Lillian Hutchins, Bernard Wilson and Harry Sappington, of Atlanta; Dr. Stonehill Anderson, of Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. Elam F. Dempsey, of Atlanta, and Mrs. John Barker, of West Point.

City Federation of Trades Backs Cleaner Pool Room Move—Scores Bail Trover Statute.

At the liveliest session held in many months, the Atlanta Federation of Trades Wednesday night adopted a resolution endorsing the Georgia Billiard Association's proposed efforts to clean up pool rooms and purify that sport; adopted a resolution condemning the present Georgia statute covering the bill trover proceedings; invited Chairman Harry Atkinson of the Georgia Railway and Power company to address the body on transportation question; and transacted other business of importance.

The resolution to endorse the billiard association was passed by a narrow margin, a tie vote being broken by a vote of the president, C. W. Cunningham. The reading of the resolution precipitated perhaps the hottest fight that has developed on the floor of the federation in some time, Jerome Jones, editor of the Journal of Labor, expressing the fear that the billiard association was attempting to "use" the federation for some purpose not seen on the surface.

Pollard Answers Charge.
A hot reply to the veiled charge of Editor Jones was made by E. L. Pollard, a signer of the resolution, who stated that the only thing involved in the question was that an attempt was being made to clean up pool rooms and make the sport a clean one.

The resolution was signed by A. S. Nance, W. C. Carraway, R. E. Gann, F. L. Pollard, C. W. Cunningham, William Pollard and C. W. Cunningham, all of whom defended the measure with spirit. Mr. Gann and others declared that the members of the billiard association were not financially interested in any pool or billiard rooms, having as a motive only the purification of the sport as a poor man's recreation.

Fighting the resolution and denouncing pool rooms as a general proposition were Mrs. M. E. Sewell, vice president of the federation; Emmett L. Quinn, president of the local delegates; Keeling, of the barbers; Wurra, of the musicians; Strauss, of the waiters; and Jerome Jones, of the Journal of Labor. After a most spirited debate, during which personalities passed and many interesting statements were made, the vote showed 15 to 11. C. W. Cunningham, who occupied the chair, breaking the tie in favor of the resolution.

A spirited fight also developed over the resolution condemning the bill trover law of the state. The resolution was signed by E. L. Quinn and other members of the organization, and Mr. Quinn stated that the resolution was directed against clothing houses selling goods on the installment plan and retaining title until paid for.

A letter from H. M. Atkinson, chairman of the board of directors of the Georgia Railway and Power company, asked the Atlanta Federation of Trades to consider the proposition filed with the city for improvement in its transportation system in Atlanta, and also suggested that he be allowed to speak to the central body some future date. A vote put to the federation resulted in instructions being given the secretary to invite Mr. Atkinson to speak.

An address was delivered by Thomas H. Mugavin, of Cincinnati, representing the painters, decorators and paperhangers. Mr. Mugavin said that the building trades unions in Atlanta are in bad condition, despatching the fact that millions of dollars worth of contracts are being executed here, and in the face of a possible continuation of the great prosperity that Atlanta is now enjoying. He

Jordan Finds Perils in Path Of Peace Maker

Blackjack Reforms Would-be Sponsor of Afro-American Hague Tribunal.

BY LOY WARWICK, JR.
Monday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock, Will Jordan, colored, was a real honest-to-goodness dyed-in-the-wool "peace-maker."

On that very same afternoon just five minutes later—had Jordan been conscious—he would have passionately shouted to a cock-eyed world that he was no longer a "peace-maker," and as long as he was blessed with a sound and active mind, he would harbor no enmities whatever to enact that gracious role.

These facts were learned in record of a court Wednesday afternoon when Marvin Marshall and Clifford Steer were arraigned before that interpreter of justice, upon charges of fighting.

Developments were fast and furious and at the termination of the hearing it was found that the latter two men were engaging in a friendly scuffle when Jordan intervened.

According to the testimony introduced in court it happened about like this:

Jordan Calls a Halt.
In the rear of a soft-drink stand on the corner of Haynes and Davis streets, Marshall and Steer were "sparring." The scuffle took on such an appearance of reality that Jordan, the peace-loving relative of the two friendly combatants and demand that they cease their pugilistic activities at once.

So vehemently did Jordan assert his request that Marshall took the liberty of producing an extra-heavy "black-jack" from his rear pocket. He not only produced the weapon, but he wielded it with terrific success. Several times the instrument of pain was loosed on Jordan's skin. So skillfully and effectively was it used that Jordan passed temporarily into the land of blazing stars.

In the meantime officers had been summoned. Marshall and Steer were seized under arrest while the retired fist of Jordan was borne from the field of battle to his home.

The would-be "peace-maker" was unable to appear in court. Friends present declared him to be in an incapacitated condition as the result of his contact with the super black-jack swinger. They also stated that he would remain at home for some time.

Marshall declared that he and Steer had only been scuffling and when Jordan attempted to stop them he had thought him attacking. His plea was self defense.

After learning that Jordan was not in a serious condition, Judge George E. Johnson assessed a fine upon Marshall and Steer of $10 and the inevitable costs.

NATURE ANSWERS SUMMER'S CALL

struggle is going on, the struggle for existence. Bitter animosities and deadly feuds are the common order of things.

May Be Songs to Sun.
Perhaps the human ear is not attuned to the eerie music; maybe those weird sounds from the tiny creatures are in reality hymns of praise to the sun, it would be small wonder. There is plenty of material for the tiny songsters to go into raptures about. Sitting on the stem of a flower or on a blade of grass they may gaze into the most wondrous blends of color as the first rays of daylight gradually change the ruby dewdrops to a pale snarl and later again to a dazzling brilliant.

The downpour of rain that swept over the southern states Wednesday night was expected and is part of the ever-revolving cycle. The leaves of the trees and the grass have received a new tinge from it, a shade lighter, but yet astoundingly green. Out in the country they are tired of rain and showers. They want things to dry up. The soil is saturated with moisture and must dry before agricultural operations can be started and carried on successfully. Yet the weather man holds out little hope for Thursday. There will be little change in temperature, he opines—and Wednesday's temperature was decidedly summery. The trouble seems to be that the centre of disturbance, which is somewhere above Texas—always a trouble-maker, meteorologically speaking—has not shifted and has remained stationary.

The observer would not commit himself on a prediction for the weather during the Kiwanis convention. It probably will be cool, he said, something like Wednesday and Tuesday when the temperature was 87. This coolness, however, must be considered from the Atlanta standpoint. What the Kiwanis international president, who comes from Toronto, Canada, will think about the "coolness of 87 degrees," is another question.

Undoubtedly Will Work a Great Good in Community

THE ATLANTA GEORGIAN, speaking editorially of the Georgia Railway & Power Company's Atlanta's Present and Future Transportation Problem, says:

"IT (THE PETITION) is a document worthy the serious consideration and attention of our people; particularly those who, with The Georgian, are looking confidently in the ambitious direction of 500,000 population in 1930.

"The Company realizes the necessity for more adequate transportation facilities. It accordingly has mapped out a program looking in that direction, which includes proposed improvements in track, car and electric systems, better speed and traffic conditions, a supplemental bus system and an increased use of tickets by providing for the sale of the same in smaller multiples than at present is the rule.

"The Company is striving," says the petition, "to the extent of its resources and energy to make this public service as good as possible."

"The petition of the Company asks permission of council to go forward with its program and expresses hope for the cooperation and help of the public in getting it across.

"The program the Company sets forth is comprehensive and, if put into execution, undoubtedly will work a great good in the community.

"The petition is businesslike and couched in terms of constructive common sense.

"Surely the Company has a right to ask for, and expect, the sympathetic cooperation of the public in endeavoring thus to better the car service.

"The Georgian thinks it will receive that quality of cooperation.

"Atlanta is a rapidly growing community. It is difficult, at best, to keep up with the needs of the community in many directions—particularly, perhaps, in the matter of street car transportation, which involves many collateral conditions.

"What the Georgia Railway & Power Company has set forth to do along the line of improving its service is wholly commendable. The Georgian feels sure the Company will be supported by the public in this good work. It deserves to be."

The program is now in the hands of a special committee of City Council. The Company believes that this Committee, with the strong endorsement of the Public, will take steps to solve Atlanta's transportation problem NOW in the interests of the greatest number of people.

"I won't say it again," he conceded. Instantly the lady smiled with him, and lifted him down from the post, and he went to the door and started toward the house.

Rand had seen Miss Seddon riding on the plains, and having noted her position on the post he had secretly retired to a point within the stable, where, with a glass, he had observed her every word spoken by her and the radiant lady visitor.

No emotion of shame seemed to affect the culprit; there was no gleam in his eyes. After a while, after Miss Seddon had been received and made to feel welcome by Aunt Betsy and Uncle Ephraim, and both withdrawn, leaving Miss Seddon alone on the porch with Bud—the culprit shamelessly emerged from the stable and made his way to the

Miss Seddon had not seen him emerge from the stable; she was not sure of his presence until she saw him—who was sitting on her lap—she said, "You're a bad boy."

"How do you like me, ma'am?" he asked. "I like you," she said. "It is you?" "I reckon it's me, ma'am," he grinned. "Looks like you ain't figurin' me any more, ma'am," he said.

"Poor little fellow," she said, "you're Bud's short hair." "He looks someone to care for him," said Aunt Betsy, who had never heard of her—use profanity. Besides, she was plenty to do to take care of the place. When I got here some time ago, I was sitting on the gatepost, and, appearing horribly,

"He's a wolf in it, ma'am," stated gravely. "He's a devil-in-the-skin pirate for cussin'." Why ma'am, I've heard him sling words around that would scare a steer off the range.

"How awful!" exclaimed Miss Seddon. "And he is such a nice little fellow, too!"

"Yes to his cousin," resumed Rand, in a gaze unwavering as it met the lady's. "There's a heap to do in the reform line. Teachin' is what he wants, ma'am—plenty of teachin'."

"I'll do what I can, of course," stated the lady. "But you might help, too. Why, he swears horribly!"

"I was helpin' him only last night," snarled Rand, without winking an eyelid. "Why, he swears like a man, ma'am, to wear him from them terrible habits of cussin'."

However, Bud had little instruction that day. Indeed, it seemed to Bud that he was being taught to be a bad boy. He was left disconsolate and brooding on the porch, to watch Silver and Midnight lope away toward the timber, the riders laughing and talking, seemingly having forgotten such a thing as profanity had ever been mentioned.

When Kinney's hand had been extended to after his encounter with Rand and the gunfighter and Link Compton were walking toward the sheriff's office, Compton looked at the other, a gleam of venomous disgust in his eyes.

"You're a hell of a gunslinger," he charged. "Lost your nerve, eh? You stood there shivering like a coyote in a blizzard, and let him bust you wide open? You didn't even get started!"

The reason Kinney hadn't got started was a mystery to the gunfighter himself. "That ain't never happened to me before," he muttered. He had been clean flustered. He didn't seem to know I had any guns on me; an' when I did get 'em it was too late."

They found Webster in his office, and they went in. Kinney dropping himself disconsolately into a chair, Compton standing, huge and furious, beside Webster's desk.

"Webster," he said oddly, meeting the other's gaze, "somebody—sawed. Who was it?"

Webster spread both hands upon the desk, the palms upward, in eloquent denial of all responsibility. "How in hell should I know?" he growled. "The first I knowed everything was goin' to smithereens was when I seen Kinney standin' there like a snubbin' post, his eyes poppin' out of his head—sawed plumb stiff. An' Rand, grinnin' like a tiger, throwin' a scrap of paper at his number eleven's!"

Compton looked at Kinney. "What was written on that paper?" "It was a bill of sale for that Midnight horse—from Seddon," growled Kinney.

Compton's face paled with rage. He strode out of the office and mounted his horse. Riding southward many miles, he encountered the Bar S outfit.

Seddon was not with the outfit. Compton waited, expecting him, but Seddon did not come that day; and Compton, reluctant to visit the Bar S ranch house for fear Eleanor Seddon might overhear some of the vitriolic things he intended to say to her father, stayed with the outfit.

It was not until sunrise the next day that Seddon appeared. And then, drawing the Bar S owner aside, Compton learned the story of Rand's appearance at the Bar S to demand the bill of sale. But the information came after Compton had charged Seddon with duplicity to him.

With rage still burning him, Compton abruptly left Seddon and rode back to town.

He spent the greater part of the day in the saddle, riding to the Two Link from the Bar S camp, and talking long and earnestly with his ranch boss. Then late in the afternoon, he went to the Gilt Edge.

Smiling merrily, Compton walked through the barroom, straddled across the dance hall, and climbed the stairs to the second story. There were a number of doors off a hall, but Compton did not hesitate, pausing before one and knocking softly upon it.

When the door swung open an instant later—just a trifle, to permit a woman's face to peer outward inquiringly—Compton placed a shoulder against it, and forced his way into the room, closing the door behind him.

harring it, and grinning sneeringly at Lucia Morell, who stood back a little from the door, glaring.

In an instant he was at her throat, and choked out of her an admission that she had warned Rand, that she did it because she loved him—and last, that Amos Seddon was Bud's father.

He had entered the girl's room determined to inflict physical punishment upon her; but the revelation of Seddon's secret, and the discovery that the girl was in love with Rand, offered possibilities that would be more satisfying than physical punishment inflicted upon the girl who cringed in the chair near him.

He taunted her with the statement that another woman loved Rand, but she retorted that he was jealous of Rand.

"And I know why. It's because you and Rand love the same woman. Who is she, Link?"

"It's Eleanor Seddon!" snapped Compton, his eyes gleaming balefully.

Lucia drew a long breath and leaned back in the chair. For a long time she sat motionless, but at last, with a shallow grin, she said slowly: "It looks as though our interests are going to jibe, after all, doesn't it, Link?"

And then, for half an hour they talked. And when Compton departed, while the woman lay alone, sat for some time in the chair, smiling merrily.

CHAPTER VI
Twice during the week that followed the talk between Link Compton and Lucia Morell in the girl's room above the Gilt Edge saloon, Compton rode over to the Bar S. Each time he found Eleanor Seddon absent from the ranchhouse, and each time Compton's face darkened.

From the Mexican woman who had been Seddon's housekeeper since the death of Seddon's wife, Compton learned that Eleanor was seldom at the ranchhouse during the day.

Nor did Compton gain any consolation from the Mexican woman's manner. She disliked the big man for Compton's attitude toward her had always been that of contemptuous insolence—and she looked at him maliciously, as on his second visit within a few days, he stood at the edge of the porch, frowning, having been told by the woman that Eleanor had gone away.

"Where did she go?" he demanded, scowling at the woman.

The woman smiled sulkily, her voice softened and apologetic. "She's ride these way—on the Silver horse." She pointed toward the trail that led to the Three Bar, and Compton's gaze grew malignant.

"Does she go that way every day?" "Ever day," smiled the woman, veiling her dislike of the man with her smooth lips.

Compton leaped on his horse and rode away, riding rigid in the saddle—betraying his rage, while the woman, watching him, grinned at his back.

His ride carried him to Oatle where he talked with Webster, then went to the Gilt Edge. The bitter mood still enduring, he drank much at the bar, and later played cards with some of his friends in the rear room. And about midnight he had another talk with Lucia Morell.

Early the next morning he rode to the Two Link ranch, accompanied by Kinney, whose hand was healing rapidly. Six men who were drunk on benches in front of the bunkhouse watched the approach of Compton and Kinney with interested glances.

And as Compton dismounted and came toward them, Kinney closely following, the men whispered to one another.

"This is Slim Kinney, boys," was Compton's presentation of his companion. "He's one of the gang now."

He grinned with cold mirth at the men. "I suppose, Lefty Morgan told you about that gun fracas Kinney had with Rand in town. Well, and he fixed them all with a sardonic glance, "don't go to razzing Kinney about him freezing like a statue and getting his finger busted. There ain't a damned one of you got nerve enough to run in with Rand, and so you don't need to josh Kinney about anything."

There was no answer, and Compton fixed his gaze upon a tall man with a truculent eye, who sat a little apart from the others.

"Nothing new?" he inquired.

"Nope," said the other; "we was waiting for you to show up. We got a bunch of mavericks holed up in Red Rock basin. We ain't aimin' to run them north until you give the word."

"Whose stock?"

"Miller's, I reckon—maybe some of Hiller's, from over the Divide."

"How many?"

"Hundred an' seventy-nine—strict count."

"Run them north tonight," directed Compton. "There won't be any moon. Take the east trail—that will take you past Hiller's far enough away so that his boys won't be able to see you if they're working the east basin."

"Correct," said the man. He rolled a cigarette, and while lighting it winked solemnly at the other men, Compton watching him. When he was sure Compton's gaze was upon him, and that Compton was expecting further speech from him, he said, slowly, as though speaking to the men at whom he was winking:

"Runnin' trail of nights is gittin' a heap monotonous. No excitement—no nothin'. If there was anybody around here could tell a man about when the stage company is fixin' to drag a load of dust through—that man would sure be listened to a whole lot enger. You don't happen to know a guy like that—do you, you grinnin' coyotes?"

Compton laughed. "You're wanting to take things too easy, Carter. That last haul we made has got you greedy."

"There's a lot more of the boys waitin' their lips over the notion, too," grinned Carter.

"Well," said Compton, "we'll know it when they ship some more. Val Davis ain't lettin' anything get away from him." He walked to the door of the bunkhouse and peered inside. Then he again turned to Carter.

"Where's Lefty Morgan?"

"Morgan ain't showin' hisself much these days," answered Carter. "He's spendin' a heap of his time gallivantin' around the country on that big black horse of his'n. I was down in the east canyon the other day, lookin' up strays. I rode roundabout, hittin' the big slope leadin' up to the level near the Three Bar ranchhouse; an' I seen a guy on a black horse headin' toward me. I save thought it was Beau Rand, an' I was gettin' ready to slope—when I took another peep an seen it was Lefty Morgan on his black. That black looks enough like Rands' Midnight boss to be him."

Compton's eyes glowed; but he did not answer. Instead, he wheeled, told Kinney he wanted to talk with him, and followed by the gunfighter, he walked to the ranchhouse.

It was late the next afternoon when Lefty Morgan, the Two Link range boss, rode up to the ranchhouse and slipped from his black horse. Compton met him on the porch.

MACON'S CHANCE FOR SALLY FRANCHISE SEEMS SLIM

President of League Calls Meeting of the Directors Today to Decide on Matter

South Atlantic League Clubs Protesting the Entrance of Georgia City in Circuit Because of Long Jump.

Charleston, S. C., May 23.—President W. H. Walsh, of the South Atlantic League, announced this afternoon that a meeting of the league directors would be held Friday at Augusta, to decide on the franchise of the Charleston club, and that Charleston would have as good an opportunity as any other city to get it. Greenville, Spartanburg and Charlotte wired in protests today against giving the franchise to Macon because of the long railroad jump.

At the meeting of the local fans last night the sum of $2,500 was needed to clear the club of debts as of May 15. Julius Sverdrup had agreed to take over the club and operate it if its debts were paid up to May 15. Members of the committee in charge of raising the money asked President Walsh to allow them until after the meeting of the league directors to raise the money, but this he refused to do, saying that he must know by 9 o'clock this morning. It was then decided to continue all efforts to raise the money and relieve Sverdrup of his agreement to take it over.

Walsh Reconsiders.

This morning, however, members of the committee were informed by President Walsh that he had reconsidered and would hold the matter open until the meeting of the league directors.

COLLIER'S PROBING EXODUS OF NEGROES

Saunders Here to Prepare Article for Magazine on National Problem.

"Collier's Weekly," national magazine, is awake to the future importance of the south in the future development of the nation. This was shown Wednesday by the arrival in Atlanta of W. O. Saunders, sent on a trip through Georgia by that publication, in order that he may write a series of articles relating to southern progress and potentialities, that the rest of the nation may profit by the experience of the south in certain respects.

Mr. Saunders is the publisher of "The Independent," a weekly newspaper of Elizabeth City, N. C. That paper has been classed as one of the greatest weekly newspapers published in the United States, and is the cause of a story about his paper, which was published in The American Magazine, that Mr. Saunders would recognize for his amazing articles.

Incidentally, the current issue of Collier's carries a story from his typewriter, entitled "Teaching a State How to Be One." It is about his home commonwealth, North Carolina.

During his visit to Georgia, Mr. Saunders is seeking, in particular, facts about the reported migration of colored people from the south to the north and east. He stated Wednesday that in a recent conversation with the editor of Collier's, that gentleman made the statement that the race problem was no longer an exclusively southern question, but had become a national problem.

In this line of thought, the assignment which sends Mr. Saunders to Georgia was worked out. He is instructed to prepare articles which will nationalize the setting forth what the south has learned in regard to the negro question during the decades during which white and colored have mingled in her midst, and in her country districts. This knowledge, acquired in the south through the instinct of past generations, will, it is felt, be valuable to the entire country.

At the same time, and of no less importance than the negro subject, Mr. Saunders will write a series of articles, expected to result in a better understanding of the negro and his problems, her advancement and her unmeasured future, on the part of the citizens of other sections of our mutual nation.

TEXAS WARNINGS SAVE OKLAHOMANS IN TORNADO'S PATH

Wichita Falls, Texas, May 23.—A southwestern tornado was robbed of its threatening heavy toll of lives this afternoon when Texas warnings followed the storming north, and the storm cellars. The home of R. H. Morton was destroyed along with another residence and several barns were razed, according to a telephone message tonight.

Persons watching the gigantic black wind current from storm cellars at Loveland, said it covered a space of 50 feet and moved slowly. It is reported to have swept the outskirts of Loveland for a distance of two miles.

It was only through the warning given by the storm warnings that automobiles were able to travel almost as fast as the tornado that there is no loss of life, it was said.

Krupp Officials Confirm Request For Dr. Wiedfeldt

Essen, May 23.—Officials of the Krupp works today confirmed the reports that they had requested the Berlin government to recall Dr. Otto Wiedfeldt, German ambassador to the United States and one of the directors of the Krupp concern as he is needed at the plant in consequence of the imprisonment of Dr. Krupp. Robert and the other heads of the concern by the French court martial.

The officials added, however, that they had not received that action from the Berlin government. They suggested that Berlin delay the announcement of the recall of the ambassador until it had found a man to succeed him in the Washington post.

"Mary and John."

The runaway bridegroom comes home, his heart full of love for the little bride who has worked hard to remove the cause of his displeasure, her untidiness. Then he finds a cigarette holder and fresh ashes. The holder looks like one that belongs to a further rival. The husband rages. There is one closet into which he has not looked. She stands tearfully and defiant before it. It is an exciting moment. The audience knows by the watchers that the play has but a brief time to run before the final curtain. How will it all work out? That is an episode in "Mary and John," the domestic comedy drama the Forsyth plays are presenting this week for its first time on any stage.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Lyric.) The mid-week change of program at P. F. Keith's Lyric brings as headliners for the last half Maude Powers and Vernon Wallace, a pair of widely known vaudeville stars. "Georgia on Broadway," is the title of their comedy skit, which is said to be exceptionally well done.

Another bright spot on the new program is Joseph K. Watson, in what is termed "A Disarrangement of Facts." Mr. Watson is a character comedian who tells dialect stories and sings lingo melodies.

Maude Powers called "The Brazilian Wonder" offers a wire walking act that is said to be one of the latest novelties in vaudeville.

The two acts rounding out the bill are Fred and Anna Henning, the handy folks, and Welch, Monty and Montrose, a clever trio called "The Surprise Boys."

Loew Vaudeville. The new show at Loew's Grand theatre in effect today brings an entire change in both the vaudeville and picture programs. Headlining the vaudeville bill are the Mellette Sisters, with Lew Pollack, the popular song composer, the three forming an accomplished combination. The sisters are seen in an elaborate dance offering in which many character steps are introduced with grace and agility.

Allen and Kirby, in an amusing skit with music entries, "Cinderella the Great," are splendid entertainers. Their act is filled with original comedy and many of the late song hits.

Other acts on the new bill are Pace and Dore in a comedy skit, the

BANDITS HOLD-UP FILLING STATION

Negroes Relieve Dunham Oil Company Employees of $70 and Make Escape in Automobile.

Two negro bandits Wednesday night held up R. W. Eppley, of 155 Pearl street, and Tom Watkins, a negro, employed at the filling station of the Dunham Oil company, 778 Highland avenue, and robbed the cash register of approximately $70 in money. The negroes, Eppley told police, drove up together in a touring car, and while one held them up at the point of a pistol, the other stayed in the car, and kept the motor running.

Before the negroes left, they made Eppley and Watkins stand with their backs toward them. They then sped toward town, according to police. Both of the negroes weigh about 175 pounds and are six feet tall. While the footprints were busy taking Eppley's money, at least a half-dozen automobiles passed by the place. Call Officer J. M. Austin and J. E. McDaniel made a fast trip to the scene of the crime, and were furnished with a description of the hold-up.

"ROSEMARY"

The name ROSEMARY is taken from a pretty evergreen shrub which gives forth a most fragrant and delightful aroma.

It typifies the quiet, delicate and pleasing service which we give at the time when such service is most needed and appreciated.

Rosemary has no religious connection as some often think, and only represents the high-class service and funeral direction which we give the public.

QUALITY, COURTESY AND EFFICIENCY are the fundamental principles of our service.
